FLOODS MAY BE BIGGEST ISSUE FOR CONGRESS

Must Consider Control of Waters in Mississippi and Imperial Valleys

BOULDER DAM DRAWBACK

Water-power Problem May Develop Complications to Delay Action

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1927, by Post Pub. Co.
Washington—Flood control may be the biggest issue before the next session of congress. Not merely the Mississippi valley, but the Imperial valley in California with the attendant problem of Boulder dam may be tied together. Public sentiment, it is recognized, will hardly brook further delay.

Were it not for the fact that a struggle on the age-old controversy of government ownership and operation killed all chance of a Boulder dam bill at the last session of congress, it would be possible to predict a sure passage of a bill to prevent floods in the Mississippi valley. Already there are signs that a small group of advocates of government ownership are talking of the power possibilities involved in harnessing the waters of the Mississippi and tributaries. If the water-power problem gets up with the Mississippi valley projects, complications will develop that may mean postponement of the project. The power interests of the country whose securities are distributed among millions of people are not likely to see the government investing its industry without a fight. On the other hand, the potential existence of a supply of water power which can be added to the power resources of the country will not be ignored by congress.

WATER-POWER CONCERNS
Unless private companies are allowed to come forward with definite plans to absorb the power created by the construction projects, the tendency of congress will be to go ahead with some form of government operation just as occurred with the shipping problem. The expressed intention of congress as it embodied in the Jones act, namely to get rid of government ships, private interests have not been willing to take over all the lines. Hence, the shipping board is about to ask congress for more ships as replacements so as to maintain adequate routes whether profitable or not.

There is some talk on plans by power interests to lease water power that may be created in the Colorado river but as yet nothing tangible has been presented. The power men say they must take care of themselves, of the exact cost of Boulder dam project so they will not be asked to pay a percentage of return on an unreasonably large investment. As for the whole problem of flood control, it now involves the spending of so many millions to care for the Mississippi as well as the Colorado, that congress is going to look more carefully at the expenditure needed than might have been the case if Boulder dam alone were to be considered. The separation of the flood control from the water power phases of the matter is all but unlikely now that all available funds must be concentrated on the immediate need of flood prevention.

MILWAUKEE LAWYER CHARGES CONSPIRACY

Rubin to Bring Suit Against Foes in "Ambulance Chasing" Inquiry

Milwaukee—(AP)—As a result of the circuit court inquiry into legal abuses in which evidence concerning his activities was introduced, Attorney William B. Rubin, criminal lawyer, instituted conspiracy proceedings under the discovery statutes Thursday. Herbert Wolfe and Edward J. Tockey, who have been conducting the investigation before the circuit court judges, were among those named as defendants in the action, one of the objects of which, Mr. Rubin states, is to sue for damages in excess of $2,000 above all costs. The defendants are ordered to appear before a court commission May 12 to be examined on 13 points on which Mr. Rubin seeks information.

The Milwaukee attorney, widely known in Wisconsin, charges his name was dragged into the inquiry because of his independent stand on public questions and his openness in condemning public service corporations when he thought it was justified.

One of the points on which he seeks information are "what plans Tockey made to run for office on the supposed expense of said Rubin" and also "what plans Wolfe made to run for judge on the supposed expense of Rubin."

PRETTY GIRLS MOB MILTON SILLS FOR PRIVILEGE OF DANCE

Chicago—(AP)—Milton Sills, who passed unnoticed when he was an instructor at the University of Chicago, got plenty of attention Wednesday night at the motion picture theatre owners ball.

He was the center of two "mob scenes" one in the lobby of the New Stevens hotel, the other in the main ball room of the hotel. Blonde and brunettes, several hundred strong and determined—were the charming attackers.

Detectives finally rescued Sills and acted as a bodyguard to the ball room. There he again was the center of a feminine rush of debauched, impudent dances. Sills made Jack Miller, president of the Movie Owners association his advance man and he then danced obediently with the misses—and madames—who Miller selected.

JUDGE ORDERS NEW TRIAL FOR THREE SHELTON BROTHERS

Material Witness Confesses Perjury—Hurl Intimidation Charges in Court

Springfield—(AP)—A new trial has been ordered by Federal Judge Louis L. M. Fitzhenry for the Shelton brothers, Carl, Bernie and Earl, southern Illinois gangsters and feudists now serving 25-year sentences at Leavenworth penitentiary for robbing the mails.

Judge Fitzhenry acted Wednesday night a few hours before expiration of the time limit for appeal from the Shelton brothers' conviction. The court declared that "one of the material witnesses was an admitted perjurer, and this court feels that the defendants did not have a fair and impartial trial."

CONFESSES PERJURY
Harve Dunger was the witness accused of false testimony. Dunger, formerly a member of the gang headed by Charles Birger, rival gangster to the Sheltons and their arch foe, confessed that he had perjured himself under threat of death by Birger.

Attorneys for the Sheltons in their pleas said that "the Sheltons were framed by postal inspectors and were sent to prison on the strength of Dunger's testimony one." This government attorneys denied.

District Attorney Walter Province countered with the declaration that "revenge was the motive that prompted Dunger to sign the affidavit that he had perjured himself." He sought to show that Dunger had been positively identified by Birger as one of the men who attempted to burn Birger's house at Harrisburg last winter.

Prosecution witnesses at the Shelton trial were terrorized by Birger. Judge Fitzhenry was told by Edmund Burke, attorney for the three brothers, that Birger threatened the trial. In February of this year, with a machine gun within reach, and that Dunger gave his perjured testimony "with pockets bulging with loaded arms."

Burke said that "Harve Dunger walked from the witness stand in the court room to Quincy, to the witness room, drew an automatic from his pocket, leveled it at Charlie Birger and threatened him there the inference being that Dunger gave false testimony unwillingly. The government made no offer in the proceedings to call Birger to the stand to contradict charges that Birger, armed, dominated the witness room."

Birger himself has been arrested charged with complicity in the slaying of Mayor Joe Adams of West City.

WORK TO RESCUE 50,000 IN FLOOD AREA

ALL AVAILABLE BOATS USED IN MENACED ZONE

Seaplanes Locate Refugees Clinging to Trees in Inland Regions

New Orleans—(AP)—The rescue of 50,000 men, women and children, thousands of them covered by repeated breaks in the Mississippi levee during the past four days, became the immediate problem Thursday of the great relief machine of Louisiana.

Craft of almost every type from the lumbering river steamer to the flat boat, propelled by an outboard motor, were busy in wide stretches of north-eastern Louisiana, moving the homeless concentration camps in Louisiana and Mississippi.

Many swift seaplanes of the navy roared over the more isolated inland places to locate refugees clinging to roof tops and trees projecting above the swirling flood waters.

As the rescue goes forward many heart-rending scenes are enacted. Children, literally dazed by a catastrophe new in their lives, cling pitifully to their mothers, who fight back their own fears and anxiety to allay those of their offspring.

FLOOD LOSSES GREAT
Men struggling against the weight of treasured household possessions, exiled from the homes and fields, where their long years of effort is being relentlessly wiped out by the flood.

Occasionally, as the caravans move slowly to the highland, groups of Negroes begin to chant their favorite songs, their spirits undaunted by even the worst of the many floods they have survived.

With the marches go horses, mules, cattle, pigs and many varieties of dogs. But not all of the livestock will be saved. Many head will be caught in the flood to swamp with exhaustion and then a prey to the murky waters.

TRY TO DIVERT WATER
As this fight for life proceeds to the northward, other battles go forward over wide fronts to the south and west.

At the bottom of the funnel-shaped flooded area, engineers and laborers pit their wits and brawn against the great mass of water bearing down from the north in the effort to divert it back into the Mississippi and so save the rich sugar cane belt in the south central part of the state.

Northward at Monroe and West Monroe, in Ouachita parish, another small army of laborers against a front and flanking foe—the swelling Ouachita itself and backwaters, coming down from Arkansas to flood a swamp behind the town.

Along other fronts breastworks are being hastily erected in the effort to save the levees. The previous work on the standing levees are being strengthened and topped against a flood now present or yet to come as the crest moves slowly down the river to the Gulf.

The weather bureau here also announced that there had been no change in the river at New Orleans with very little alteration of the level indicated for several days.

2 BUILDINGS BURN AT OCONTO; LOSS $85,000

Oconto—(AP)—Fire originating in the rear of the armory here early Thursday morning destroyed that building and the Schneider Hardware company building, together with the center's, causing a loss of approximately $85,000. The fire was still burning at 9 o'clock but was under control of the fire departments. The Marinette fire department was called to help fight the blaze and the two companies succeeded in saving the Elks club and the Oconto National bank buildings which were adjacent to the burning structures.

VANZETTI GIVES NEW PREJUDICE CHARGES TO STATE EXECUTIVE

Plea for Liberty Is Backed by Six Affidavits of Impropriety in Trial

Boston—(AP)—The fight for freedom which Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti have waged with unrelenting vigor since their conviction for murder six years ago entered a new phase Thursday. Governor Fuller had before him a personally written plea for liberty, backed by six striking affidavits, which brought into the open charges of prejudice by the trial court never before published.

The plea was Vanzetti's own. The affidavits were from prominent persons, who made allegations of bias and impropriety on the part of Judge Webster Thayer, who after being upheld by the supreme court in his refusal of a new trial, recently sentenced both prisoners to death.

Sacco's decision not to join in the petition for clemency was attributed by counsel and a psychiatrist to conviction that to do so would be against his faith as an anarchist.

Vanzetti called for an investigation on behalf of both. Refusing to ask "mercy," his petition again and again demanded only "justice." He maintained both men were innocent. The statements were termed by the defense counsel as their last legal trump.

GRAY LEAVES STAND IN MURDER TRIAL

Demonstrates How He Wielded Sash Weight With Which He Beat Snyder

Queens-co Courthouse, N. Y.—(AP)—The direct examination of Henry Judd Gray, coroner salesman charged with the murder of Albert Snyder, magistrate in Queens, parish, another small army of laborers against a front and flanking foe—the swelling Ouachita itself and backwaters, coming down from Arkansas to flood a swamp behind the town.

Along other fronts breastworks are being hastily erected in the effort to save the levees. The previous work on the standing levees are being strengthened and topped against a flood now present or yet to come as the crest moves slowly down the river to the Gulf.

The weather bureau here also announced that there had been no change in the river at New Orleans with very little alteration of the level indicated for several days.

IRISH DENIES INFLUENCE IN REQUEST TO HOSPITAL
Chicago—(AP)—The Rev. J. W. Irish, charged in a decision by the Wisconsin Supreme court with having exercised undue influence in causing the late Francis C. Walker to change his will, stated here Thursday that Walker, he informed him, without prompting inquiry that he had "decided not to give his property to his family."

The estate of approximately $40,000 was willed to the Rice Lake hospital one of the four Methodist Episcopal institutions then under control of the Rev. Mr. Irish. Since then the Rev. Mr. Irish has been promoted to an executive position with national board of hospitals homes and deaconess work, with headquarters in Chicago.

COUNCIL PUTS ITS O. K. ON RULE'S VETOES

Boulevard Improvement Program Deferred on Plea of Economy

The common council at its meeting Wednesday night lined up with Mayor A. C. Rule's economy program and sustained his vetoes of the proposal to plant shrubbery on the boulevards on W. College-ave, S. Cherry-st and N. State-st. and of the ornamental lighting system on S. Cherry-st.

Proponents of the lighting system made a desperate fight to pass the measure over the mayor's objections but were unsuccessful.

There was no discussion of the shrubbery program which the mayor had vetoed because of the financial condition of the city. Alderman Steinhauser moved that the veto be sustained and Aldermen W. H. Gmeiner, R. F. McGilton, Mike Steinhauer, Phillip Vogt and Fred Wiese voted with him. Only one more vote was needed by the aldermen favoring passage to put the measure over.

The lighting system started a round of discussion which lasted a long time. Those who voted to sustain the mayor's veto on the lighting measure were Aldermen Gmeiner, Steinhauer, McGilton, Vander Heyden, Vogt and Wiese.

Mayor Rule had vetoed the lighting system for the reason that the city treasury is running low and because he thought the system which had been chosen was not suitable. He said it should be given more consideration when the city can do it.

WANTS REAL ECONOMY
Alderman Mark Catlin opened the debate for the lighting system by saying that he was favoring economy but not false economy. He said a dangerous condition existed on S. Cherry-st and that unless the lighting system was installed, the city was liable to be involved in suits which soon eat up the $4,000 which the system would cost.

Mr. Catlin said the street lighting committee had made a thorough investigation of the system and had decided on metal posts because they are safer and less expensive than concrete posts.

"It would be a shame after Appleton has expended a large sum to build the Cherry-st bridge and improve the boulevard to abolish an ornamental system which would put the finishing touches on one of the finest approaches to a city in Wisconsin," Catlin declared. "Every day we hear motorists praising our entrance. The street lights will be a national eye-feel apart which is not an extravagance. They would be a safety measure and I am of the opinion that the people of Appleton demand the system. We should give it to them."

CONTINUE OFFICES
"If we want to start practicing economy why not combine several of these positions such as plumbing inspector, building inspector and light inspector and instead of paying several salaries pay only one," Catlin said. "I understand there is a third cog in the engine."

LAUNDRY OWNERS AIM TO RELIEVE U. S. HOUSEWIFE

Des Moines, Ia.—(AP)—The laundry owners have as their goal the complete removal of the washing from the home. C. A. Chidsey of Detroit, regional director of the Four States Laundry Owners association, composed of Iowa, Wisconsin, Illinois and Michigan, told the delegates attending the convention here. The executive committee voted a $500 donation to the Red Cross for Mississippi flood relief and the Wisconsin delegation added a like amount.

Bayonets Guarding City After Negro Is Lynched
Little Rock, Ark.—(AP)—The sight of militia men standing guard on important street corners with fixed bayonets greeted residents of Little Rock Thursday following a night of disorder, during which a Negro was lynched, his body thrown into the river and the scene and burned upon a funeral pyre while several thousand persons looked on.

Fear of additional serious racial trouble caused Governor Martin to hurry here on a special train after ordering out a national guard company for full night patrol duty.

Judge Upholds Legality Of Cattle Tuberculin Law

Racine—(AP)—Judge E. B. Beiden, in circuit court here Thursday upheld the right of the state to make the bovine tuberculin test and denied the petition of Charles Koskey, Racine-co. farmer for an injunction restraining the Wisconsin Livestock Sanitary board from proceeding with the test of his cattle.

He ruled further that bovine tuberculosis is an infectious, contagious disease, inimical to public health and welfare and welfare and communicable to human beings. The regulations provided in chapter 94 of the Wisconsin statutes are constitutional and not clearly unreasonable, he held. The court declared that it is the duty of the livestock sanitary board to protect the health of domestic animals and employ the most efficient and practical means for the prevention, suppression, control and eradication of communicable disease among domestic animals for which purpose it may establish, maintain and enforce and regulate quarantines and tests such other measures as it may deem necessary, such rights coming within its general police powers.

"The fact that police laws and regulations," he held, prevent the enjoyment of individual rights in property without compensation, therefore, does not necessarily render them unconstitutional, the reason being that such laws are not considered as appropriating private property for public use, but simply as regulating its use and enjoyment by the owner. Referring to the test applied by the state the court said:

"It is held by the state that it is the best known test for detecting the presence of disease in cattle and that the mere fact that scientists differ as to the reliability does not furnish a ground for interference by the court. The statute's constitutionality authorizes inspection and test to the end that the presence of disease may be ascertained according to what are accepted as recognized as the best known tuberculin test."

RAISE $1,200 FOR COUNTY FLOOD FUND

Treasurer of Red Cross Chapter Believes People Will Furnish Quota

Slightly more than $1,200 of the $2,000 quota of the Outrigger fund, chapter of the Red Cross for the relief of flood victims in Mississippi valley states had been raised by Thursday noon. It was reported by P. M. Conkey, treasurer of the chapter.

As reports from the flooded area came in and the picture of the picture of havoc and ruin, people are becoming more generous, he believes. Confidence that the county would reach its quota was expressed by him. "Never has there been such a need in handling a peace time problem," he said. "Our local campaign is just reaching the stage of free response. Less than 200 have been heard from."

"The American Legion assures cooperation. The local churches have all signified their willingness to contribute. The First English Lutheran church has contributed $50 as a start."

"In the effort to do Appleton's part, there is no thought of urging large sums. The little gifts of many people will do most for our city and when they are in, will meet our part of the need."

U. S. REFUSES STATEMENT ON MELLON DATA

Kellogg Declines Diplomatic Exchange on "Purely Domestic Discussion"

MELLON DEFENDS LETTER Explains Typographical Error Led to Misleading Impression

Washington—(AP)—Great Britain has sought an official statement from the Washington government, arising from Secretary Mellon's letter to President Hibben of Princeton university regarding the British war debt, but Secretary Kellogg in a two paragraph note has replied that the discussion was purely domestic and no desire for diplomatic exchanges is entertained.

The British note asserted that Mr. Mellon's letter was in some instances inaccurate and that some declaration seemed advisable. The American treasury secretary defended his communication to Hibben and reiterated that cancellation of war debts would place an unjust burden upon Americans.

Specifically, the British note complained against what it termed the misleading impression that Great Britain's debt payments to the United States will not constitute a drain on England's economic resources and that she is receiving in reparations from other nations more than her payments to the American treasury.

DENY MELLON STATEMENT
A point of view was expressed by Mr. Mellon's statement that "all principal debtors are already repaying from Germany more than enough to pay their debt to the United States." This the British government denied. Mr. Mellon, in his public statement, says that through a typographical error the word "text" of Great Britain" were inadvertently omitted.

"In the light of this very clear and definite statement, it is rather surprising that the British government should lay stress on what the context showed to be a typographical error. It is a statement of fact and goes to such length to disprove a statement which was already completely covered," Mr. Mellon's statement said.

Secretary Kellogg made public a short note to the London government's representative saying, after acknowledging the error, that:

"The government of the United States regards the correspondence between Mr. Mellon and Mr. Hibben as a purely domestic discussion and does not desire to engage in any formal diplomatic exchanges upon the subject."

FOREIGN PRESS COMMENTS
The phase of the Hibben letter regarding adequate reparations by "all" other countries to take care of the American obligations was subjected to wide discussion in the foreign press. The British note declared apparently that Mellon did not take into consideration that the British Empire's reparations receipts have to be distributed between Great Britain and other parts of the empire, the share of Great Britain having been agreed upon at 86.25 per cent. It further stated that "the British note is contained in Secretary Mellon's figures of the receipts of Great Britain from France."

"Those appear to include," the note said, "the sums which were due by the Bank of France to the Bank of England in repayment of advances made to it by the Bank of England. This is a private transaction and is not an inter-governmental debt. The payments are made to the Bank of England, and not one penny there accrues to the British treasury or the British government."

To this Mr. Mellon replied: "While not admitting it, the British government's note does not deny that the sums specified in my letter were actually paid by the people of France, Germany, and Italy, but are not a debt of the sums paid accrued to the benefit of the Bank of England, others to the dominions and apparently from our reading of their figures such items as payment for war stocks are not considered by them as accruing to the benefit of the British government or the British treasury. This is the real cause of the apparent disagreement as to facts."

At the outset of its note, the British government emphasized that while it regrets Mr. Mellon's "inaccuracies," the communication was presented "in no contemptuous or controversial spirit."

COUNCIL AGREES WITH PLAN BOARD ON BUSINESS AREA

File Recommendation That No Changes Be Made on Wisconsin-ave

A recommendation of the city plan commission that no section of Wisconsin-ave be placed in a business district because there is no need for such district at this time was received by the common council at its meeting Wednesday night, and placed on file.

Alderman Mike Steinhauser objected to the recommendation because he said there is need of a business district on Wisconsin-ave and if there is no immediate need there will be in the future and the property should be placed in a business district to keep citizens from building there.

"If we allow people to build homes there and later we want to place the street in a business district we will have trouble," he declared.

Alderman Catlin said steps should be taken to place the matter of making changes in the zoning law with one body alone. Under the present system the zoning board passes on an application and then the common council makes another fight over it.

"There is something wrong with this kind of a system," he said.

Mayor A. C. Tule said the plan commission had not been asked to decide whether Wisconsin-ave should be placed in a business district in the future date but merely to determine whether there was any need for a business district now.

The report of the streets and bridges committee which included recommendations for a sewer on Tulehove from Candice to Johnson, several sidewalks and street repairs, white suits for the street sweepers, and purchase of a power lawn mower was adopted.

Alderman Thompson inquired of the mayor why he didn't include white suits for street sweepers in his economy plan and alderman Catlin said the power lawn mower also should be included. Alderman Vander Heyden suggested that red caps be purchased for the street sweepers. "They would be just as effective and less expensive," he said.

Alderman Steinhauser declared that the white suits for street sweepers were adopted as a safety measure and he charged the other aldermen were peevish because the shrobberry and lighting programs were defeated. Alderman Callahan, Catlin and Thompson voted to reject the report.

The contract for paving W. Washington-st was awarded to the E. P. Coughlin company of Chicago providing the company filed a bond to protect the city in case of suits brought by property owners. The Coughlin company's bid for Warrenite Bitulithic will extend from N. Superior-st to the concrete was $10,165. The pavement will extend from N. Superior-st to the new street from Washington-st to College-ave.

A bid for the city's bank account was received from the First National bank. It offered to pay 2 per cent on daily bank balances and make loans to the city at 5 per cent. Last year the city paid 6 per cent on loans. The

How To Play Bridge

By Milton C. Work

The pointer for today is: AT THE BRIDGE TABLE A "DUCK" IS THE PLAYING OF A LOSING CARD WHEN HOLDING ONE WHICH POSSIBLY OR SURELY CAN WIN THE TRICK. DUCKING IS OFTEN ESSENTIAL.

The bridge novice generally feels about high cards the way a drunken sailor is supposed to feel about his money. The sailor is anxious to spend his money, and the bridge novice, even when playing No Trump—spends his high cards, seeming to fear that they may be lost unless used at the last opportunity. For example, when leading from Ace-King-Jack against a No Trump it takes considerable coaching to make the novice appreciate that the King and Ace of the suit should not be led first, as they would be against a suit declaration.

Let us look at a specific case. Suppose that Declarer and Dummy hold the following hands: Closed Hand (South) playing No Trump, and that the six of Clubs has been led:

Dummy—
 ♠ Q-J-10-8
 ♥ K-A-6-4
 ♦ 5-3-2
 ♣ 10-2
 Closed Hand—
 ♠ A-7-6
 ♥ A-7-2
 ♦ A-Q-J-4
 ♣ K-Q-7

Following the pointers recently given, Dummy (North) would play the Ten of Clubs as that would be the best chance to make two Club tricks. Supposing further that you were the Declarer and that the Ten of Clubs had taken the first trick; you should not lead to the second trick without a definite plan. Before reading tomorrow's article, I want you to make up your mind what that plan should be. You cannot be sure that your two hands contain a game; as a matter of fact, the chances seem to be the other way. But if there be a chance for game you should try for it; and the question is how? ## LEGISLATORS TRY NEW SCHEME FOR RAISE IN SALARY

Teasdale Introduces Resolution Fixing Pay at $10 a Day

Madison—(P)—The joint finance committee meeting Thursday afternoon will review the first education bill relating to physical education that has been offered during the session.

The bill introduced by a committee on judiciary concerns an appropriation to erect a physical education building at the University of Wisconsin. The finance committee has not as yet reviewed the other physical education bill which would provide a new field house in place of the present university armory.

Assemblyman Withrow, LaCrosse, will speak before the committee on education and public welfare on his bill to make Armistice Day a school holiday in this state. The bill was introduced by Mr. Withrow at the request of the American Legion.

Another attempt to raise the salary of legislators will be made today when Senator Teasdale, Sparta, will defend his joint resolution relating to increased compensation before the judiciary committee. The Teasdale resolution provides for a ten dollar per day salary to be paid the legislators as long as both houses are in session. No approximate amount could be fixed according to this rating in view of the time element which enters in compiling salaries.

Two bills by Senator Chase, Oconto, concerning insurance companies and calculation of their license fees will start off the finance hearing followed by a bill by Senator Titus relating to the transferring of a portion of the receipts from the inheritance tax to the common school fund.

Assemblyman Coleman, Milwaukee, will defend his bill before the agriculture and labor committee concerning the establishment and maintenance of local free employment offices.

Senator Morris, also of Milwaukee, will speak before the same committee in defense of his measure introduced some time ago relating to strikes and lockouts. According to the senator this bill has been drawn up "as a means of dealing with a strike is ended." The bill provides for a committee to be appointed by members of both the strikers and employers to set the date, acceptable to all parties concerned, when the strike in question might be declared "officially" ended.

Fisherman Needs Skill To Catch Large Trout

BY B. A. CLAFIN

The desire of every trout fisherman is to land a big one. This is perfectly natural but only those skilled in the art can turn the trick. The reason for this is quite obvious. The bigger the trout gets the older and wiser he gets, and the difficulty of fooling him keeps pace with his growth. It is easy to splash down a stream and hook the little ones with almost any offering. They are unsophisticated. But the wise oldtimer who perhaps has been stung by the barb in his early days, must be led to believe that your lure is a natural prey or he will scorn it.

As he ascends the stream in the spring he takes possession of some deep hole which becomes his summer home. Here he will fight off all intruders with great viciousness. This is true particularly of the Speckled trout, fontinalis. The Rainbow is more active and prefers the rapids where he darts from side to side in ate and messaged to the governor's office. The bill met no strong opposition in either house. It is expected to receive action in the governor's office within a few days.

cager search for floating food. Frequently it is possible to take several rainbows from one small area. But from the deeper, more sluggish holes partly overhung by the bank, it is seldom that more than one real big Speckled trout will be taken.

Contrary to the opinion of the majority of warm fishermen, more big trout are taken on a fly than with any other lure. But to do this the fisherman must know the game. He must know what insects are on the surface of the stream, and then match one as nearly as possible. At different times during the summer certain flies and insects appear. They are provided by nature as food for the trout, and the fisherman who recognizes the different species, and has artificial flies to match them, naturally will meet with better success. When the Caddis fly of warm weather appears it is useless to use a Willow no matter how cleverly presented.

The big lunger always lies with his head upstream and his eyesight is very keen. Along toward evening you may hear the sullen flop as he rises to the surface for a floating insect. This insect may be a midge. It may be a tiny red ant but, whatever it is, you must match it closely or you won't interest him.

Assuming that you are using a dry fly on a seven and a half foot leader, get below the fish and cast above him but not too far, and let your fly float over his last rise. If you do this properly you may get him, but you never will with a worm or other lure as handled by the ordinary fisherman.

There are places on the north branch of the Oconto where it is still possible to coax out one of these lunkers but they are not plentiful. You can, however, be assured of good sport if you are not afraid of work. Go west from Townsend about five miles to the old dam and fish down. You can go as far as you wish and that is where you will appreciate light waders. You will find the fish-ing good all the way down, and the way is long.

UNGRODT PUTS UP STRONG FIGHT FOR MORE SCHOOL AID

Former Lawrentian Seeks Better Educational Opportunity for Rural Children

Madison —(AP)— Education of the state should be financed on a state-wide schedule, and this support should be so equalized that all schools might afford equal opportunities for children, Assemblyman Paul Ungrodt, Washburn, said in his address Wednesday endorsing the department of education bill for equalized tax apportionment.

The bill, changing the methods of dividing state money for schools so that county and small district schools receive more state aid, was suggested by Assemblyman Ungrodt as a relief for the "defects now piling up against several municipalities because of the expensive support of the schools."

"Do we in fact have the equal educational opportunity of which we boast?" he asked. "Do not the children in the more populous districts, where support is naturally greater, have more educational opportunities than in the small country district? The burden of school taxes are weighing so heavily upon some northern districts and some I know of in the south too," he said, "that taxation has become so great as to cause, in some cases, fifty per cent of the assessments to become delinquent."

APPLAUSE FOR SPEAKER
"Many municipalities are borrowing more than the state law allows — they are creating larger and larger deficits — particularly because of educational expenses, teachers' compensation etc," he continued. "Teachers sometimes have to wait months for their pay and I have heard of at least one instance in which the maintenance of the school itself was threatened."

Assemblyman Ingalls, Racine brought a brief round of applause for the "Boy Mayor," Mr. Ungrodt, when he declared that the young assemblyman's explanation of the bill and his talk in its favor showed "more thought and clear, conclusive argument, than you will hear in a long time in this house, from either a young or old man."

The Racine assemblyman then pointed out that before consideration of the bill was concluded the assembly must "establish a revenue system that will fit it."

"Its purpose is beyond question, as far as I am concerned," he said. "But we should lay it over until we decide whether we should raise this revenue for increased support of the small schools by a mill tax, an increase in income taxes or by some other method." He indicated his personal property repeal and substitution of an increased income tax as a possible way of raising the revenue.

His motion for laying the measure over was accepted by the lower house. The Assembly then took up the bill allowing members of municipal boards to hold offices on the various county highway departments. After the bill had been denounced as "dangerous" by several speakers, it was killed, the

FIGHT FOR HOME BREWER
Assemblyman Snob's bill setting up new requirements for licensing and regulating pharmacists was ordered engrossed, without debate, as were several other measures preceding the parliamentary struggle over the Duncan bill of rights for the home brew-

"This bill, allowing manufacture of beer containing 2 1/2 per cent alcohol was the subject of two calls to the house, long debate and was finally laid over until May 11.

The author of the bill, Thomas Duncan, Milwaukee, was in the presiding chair at the direction of Speaker Iker when the bill came up. The speaker, however, returned to his post in time to allow Mr. Duncan to speak on the measure.

Assemblyman Grandine denounced the measure as the "entering wedge to reopen the Sevenson law," the state prohibition enforcement act. "This beer," he said, "is not going to be made entirely in the houses of the state. It means the reopening of the breweries, enlargement of the old and building of new ones and enlargement of the liquor sales agencies."

Assemblyman Bauman, companion of Mr. Duncan, answered this argument by declaring that "under the federal law they are not allowed to make more than one half of one per cent alcoholic content, therefore the brewers would not be able to operate under this bill. They don't want it anyway. They are making more money now on the products sold for the manufacture of home-brew."

Assemblyman L. G. Smith urged defeat of the bill saying that its passage would be "turning the hands back on the dial." He exhibited various quantities of alcohol and a small glass, explaining scientific matters on content of liquors and the effect of alcohol on the human system.

Holding up the small glass he declared that "No man could drink this full of alcohol and walk straight."

Assemblyman Bauman, rising to a point of order caused a break in the seriousness of the discussion by declaring "I challenge the statement of the gentleman of Rock second."

Assemblyman Iker declared that passage of the bill would be "equivalent to secession" because it would withdraw the states support of the United States constitution.

As the discussion progressed Assemblyman Miller moved a call to the house. It was found that several members were absent and the call was lifted, only to be supplanted by another call, which was held for nearly half an hour. Nearly a score of other parliamentary moves were made before the calls were finally dispensed with and the bill ordered engrossed, after defeat of an indefinite postponement motion.

SMITH IS GAINING POWER BUT ISN'T NOMINATED AS YET

Attempt to Identify Him to Public With One Big National Issue

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—One hears that Governor Al Smith is gaining strength within the Democratic party and that he is more likely to be nominated than anyone else.

Any attempt has been begun to identify him to the public with at least one national issue, the hydro-electric power issue, and it is not unlikely that Governor Al's scope will be similarly broadened as the time draws nigh for the party to deposit in someone's hands the little red apple which last turned to a decayed raspberry in the hands of the estimable John W. Davis.

NOT YET CERTAIN

In these days prior to convening of the next Congress one man's hazy conjecture is as good as another's, but it is hard to believe that Smith's nomination is as nearly certain as many insistent persons would have us all believe. The swing to Smith may be progress, but various obstacles remain. And there are those who will stick as many more obstacles into his path as they can.

Millions of Democrats would almost rather take poison than a candidate from New York. Some of this feeling doubtless is traceable to a stupid hatred of New York and all its works. Bitter memories of the last national convention intensified the sentiment. But there is much more to it than that.

"The Democrats," says an important southern politician, "haven't had an electoral vote from New York in any presidential election since 1892, except in 1912, when the Republican party was split."

"The same is true of New Jersey, where the Democrats couldn't even win for Wilson in 1916."

"We haven't had an electoral vote from Illinois since 1882 and that was the only time since the Civil War."

"We haven't had one from Rhode Island since 1912."

"Never in the history of the party have we had an electoral vote from Massachusetts, except in 1912."

"We haven't had one from Pennsylvania since 1912."

"Nor from Delaware, except in 1912, since 1892."

THE WEST TERRITORY

"And those states represent the Al Smith strength of 1924 and the backbone of it for 1928. It's the wet section of the Democratic party, which is three-fourths dry."

This politician, it might be interpolated, is personally quite wet. He admits that the Democratic party simply doesn't dare be wet.

"These eastern Democrats never voted for us even when we nominated the man, Judge Alton B. Parker, who ran as well as Bryan. We nominated the east's man in 1924 and he ran worse than Bryan ran in any of his three campaigns."

"Bryan won a progressive vote, but we don't get it when we nominate an imitation Republican, Wilson. If it were Bryan and not even McAdoo could get it. Either Smith or McAdoo could poll upwards of 3,000,000 votes better than another nonentity."

"If these New York, Illinois, Massachusetts and New Jersey politicians had ever helped elect a Democrat where it counted most, we might be more willing to give them another chance. But neither Parker, Cox, or Davis ran as well in the east as Bryan. Each, in succession, was beaten more badly and if we nominate another fellow whom nobody has anything against and nobody has anything for, there'll be a couple more million Republican votes."

THE TWO LEADERS

"We're not afraid of losing with either Smith or McAdoo. If McAdoo wins he will have a better than fighting chance to win with the vote of the south and west, discarding the north-east. If Smith is nominated, we might well win with a combination of southern, western and northeastern states and will lose some of the doubtful states."

"But we've got to be shown that Mr. Smith can do better for us than Mr. McAdoo."

Speaking of the progressive vote, however, it should be added that some of the late Senator LaFollette's best friends here are confident that Smith, if nominated, would inherit virtually every vote that was cast for the LaFollette-Wheeler ticket in 1924.

NEAR-BUTTER PRODUCTS SUBJECT TO TAXATION

Certain products made from vegetable and animal oils and resembling butter will be taxed after Oct. 1, 1927, if found on the market without stamps showing that taxes on them have not been paid, it is announced by the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Such products and other compounds, churned, emulsified, or otherwise mixed colored to look like butter have been declared by the bureau taxable as artificially colored oleomargarine. Notices to this effect have been sent to oleomargarine manufacturers.

Cooking compounds placed on the market in good faith as such and which do not resemble butter in flavor, texture or appearance are exempt from the tax on oleomargarine.

The number of pounds of oleomargarine produced during the last fiscal year was 22,956,722, a 10 percent increase over the preceding fiscal year. At the beginning of the fiscal year, July 1, 1925, there were 61 oleomargarine factories in operation.

RETURN ADDRESS ON MAIL ADVISED

Caution by Sender Will Prevent Many Letters from Becoming Lost

Return addresses on all mail matter is urged by Fred Felix Wettengel, acting postmaster, to prevent delay in the mails. Mail without a return card very frequently goes to the United States Dead Letter Office, while a return card would bring it back to the sender if it could not be delivered to the person to whom it was addressed," he said.

"If the people would protect the delivery of their mail by providing a return card they would not only assist the postal department but would enjoy a benefit that can be measured only by the importance of the letter itself. It's your best insurance to guarantee delivery, why not avail yourself of its benefits?" the postmaster concluded.

Many times postal cards and letters are mailed with wrong addresses or none at all. They are sent to the dead letter office and if the letter is of value, for instance if it contained a draft or money order, an attempt is made to locate the sender, but if it is of no real value, the letter is destroyed.

How often do people wonder why their mail is not answered simply because it has never been delivered, it was asked.

The return address should be placed in the upper left hand corner on the address side of an article.

EGGS DISPLACE SULPHUR AS TONIC FOR SPRING

Madison—(P)—That famous combination — sulphur and molasses—has gone into the discard as a springtime tonic and its place has been taken by eggs. Mrs. Edith Bettinger, University of Wisconsin food specialist, advised today.

"Eggs will take away the 'fired feeling' more than anything you might find in your modern cupboard," the food specialist continued. "Folks are especially rich in iron, the one substance lacking in milk and which the body needs badly."

"Today, eggs are added to the diet of most babies when they are three months old, and continue to be one of the chief foods all during life."

"Special care should be taken in preparing the egg yolk for young children," Mrs. Bettinger warns. "Occasionally there is a child to whom raw egg white is poisonous, but usually only raw or slightly cooked eggs are given to babies."

"The egg yolks contain most of the food value of the egg, especially the foods which children need. This explains why the white may be eliminated so completely from the diet of the baby and young child."

Summer school work has been recommended to students at Appleton high school who lack a few credits for graduation, by H. H. Heible, principal. High school subjects are given at the summer school at Oshkosh normal school, he said. Those averaging below a "C" grade are not allowed to take extra work in the regular high school terms, he said, so that summer schools offer an opportunity to make up work.

Special interurban cars are to be run to this city from Milwaukee and Wauwatosa. Parking space has been provided for those who drive to the park. Arrangements have been made for picnic lunches on the park grounds.

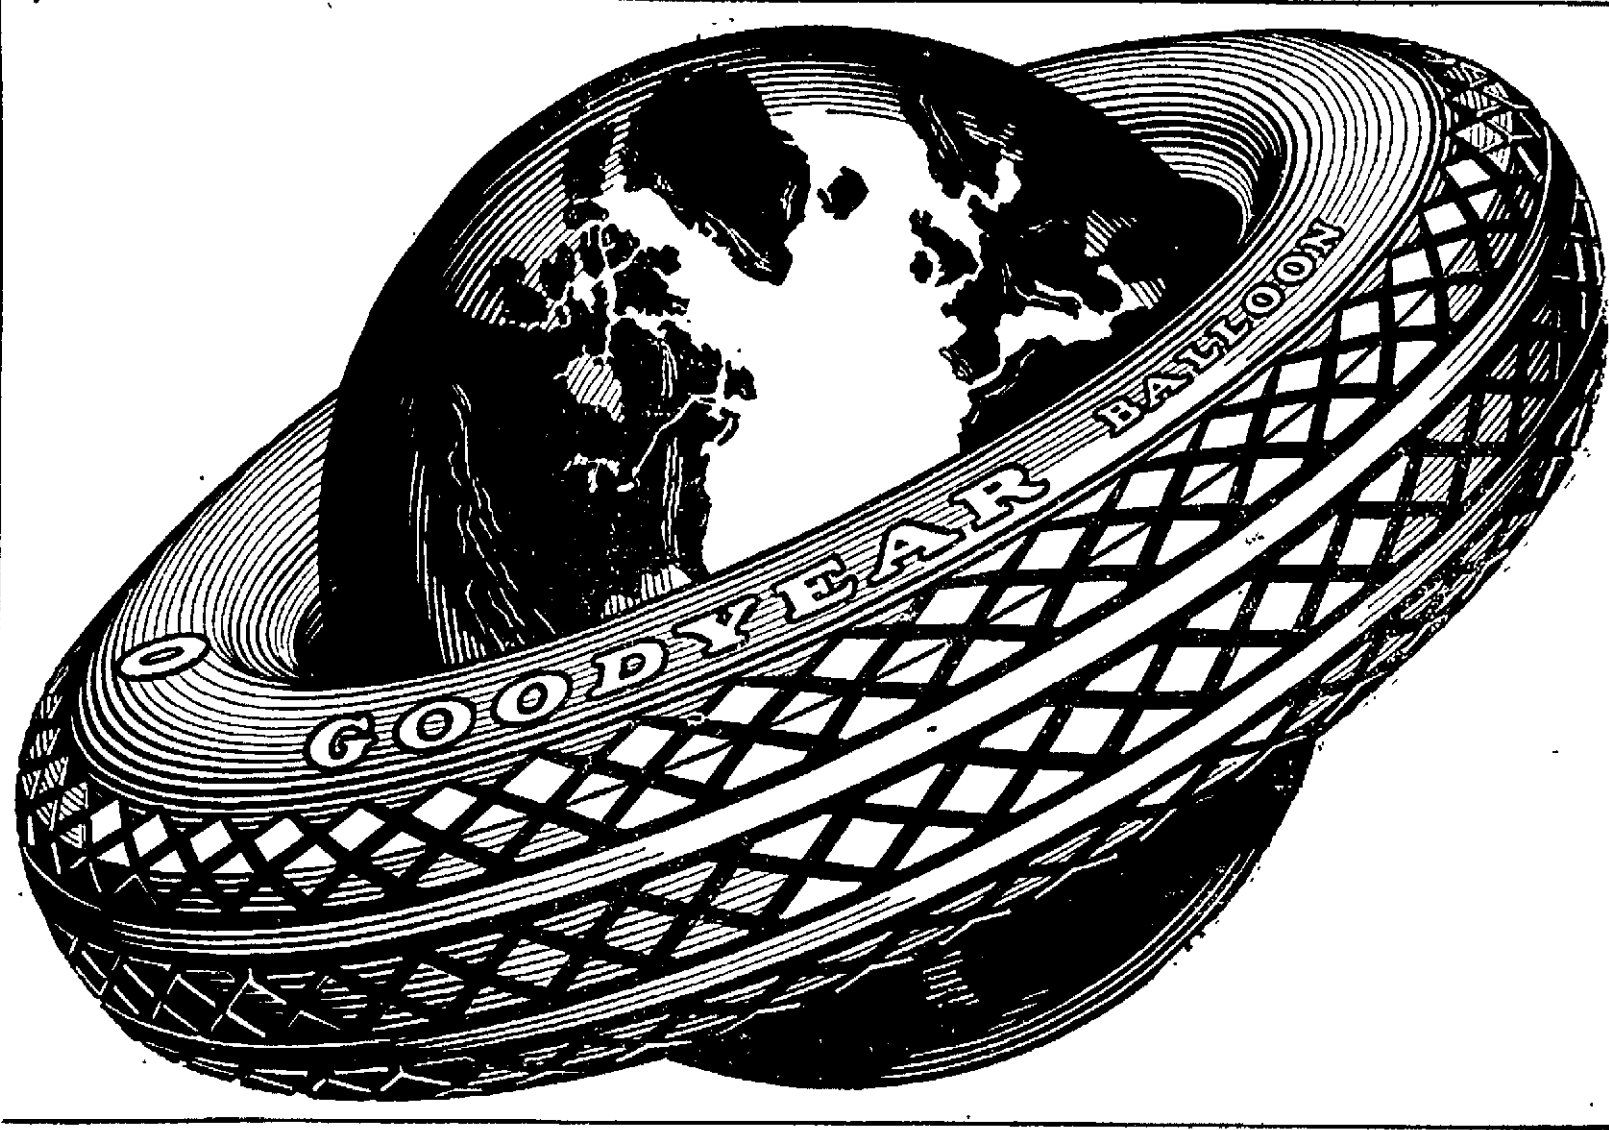

The chief attraction of the pilgrimage and memorial will be the dress parade of St. Johns Military Academy, Delafield. Four hundred cadets will pass in review before Commander-in-chief Frank A. Walsh, of the Grand Army of the Republic, and his department officers.

More than two hundred trees, each marked with a memorial to a civil war veteran, have been planted in the park, and more than a hundred more have been sold.

The posts, camps and fortifications of the G. A. R. in Wisconsin have each been urged to send their officers or delegates to the meeting.

MAKING BETTER RELATIONS

The theme of President Coolidge's address at the Third Pan-American Commercial conference was the interdependence of Latin-America and the United States. It is a theme that could have been broadened to include Canada. Europe and other portions of the world. The president gave expression to the idea of commercial reciprocity, but as usual without committing himself to tariff reciprocity.

Still, the president's speech emphasizes the fact that no country and no section of the world is entirely self-contained. The United States is not in a position to follow a policy of commercial exclusion, even if it were desirable, which of course it is not. While it is true in the case of Latin-America that we sell less to the countries south of us than we buy, we sell a great deal more to Canada than we purchase from her, and most other countries. We happen to buy more in South and Central America than we sell for the simple reason that they have vast stores of raw materials we need and their consuming demand for our manufactures does not keep pace with their production.

Not only is a vast amount of goods and commodities we import from other countries essential to our well-being and high standard of living, but it is essential to our prosperity. Not a few of these importations come into healthy competition with similar articles produced here, without which the American consumer would be forced to pay an unjustifiably high price, and would often be the victim of monopolistic exploitation.

A continuance of the growth of profitable trade relations between Latin-America and the United States is, after all, probably the best means for bringing about better relations between the two continents and a better understanding of each other's aims and point of view. Diplomacy at Washington simply does not seem to be able to make itself comprehended in Latin-America. The unavoidable friction we have had with some of the republics, and incidents such as that which has taken us into Nicaragua, create political distrust south of us which those in authority seem to encourage. The propaganda that the United States is not to be trusted and that its real purposes are militaristic has taken deep root in Latin-American soil and is exceedingly hard to counteract. The more we let down trade barriers between us and Central and South America, the more we do to promote a mutual exchange of commodities, the sooner these prejudices and illusions will be wiped out.

USED TO OBEDIENCE

We Americans are spoken of as a liberty-loving race, and doubtless we are; but the fact remains that in minor matters, at least, we are pretty well broken to the iron hand of authority. We love to be bossed; and we are accustomed to obedience.

This may sound odd, in view of our gunmen, rum-runners and law violators generally; but it is true.

The other day, in a large mid-western city, there was a certain busy street intersection where a traffic officer was missing. Out into this intersection strode a civilian—a rather rugged, down at the heels civilian. All on his own he began to direct traffic. With lordly waves of his hand he ordered one stream to halt; with equally lordly gestures he ordered another stream to proceed.

And he got away with it! Motorist after motorist came to that corner and he obeyed the commands of this ragged fellow. No one questioned him; no officer defied him. Yet he most obviously was entirely unofficial.

We must love to be bossed. That's about the only explanation.

GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP

The Wisconsin senate has killed a resolution memorializing congress for government ownership of railroads. It was defeated by the decisive vote of 17 to 4. The prompt rejection of this resolution shows how little progress the movement for government railroad ownership has made. If it could not receive a favorable vote in Wisconsin, it certainly could not receive it in many sections of the country, if in any. We are ready to experiment with almost anything in this state, and there are of course many of our people and politicians who favor public ownership and operation of transportation agencies. But they are for the most part persons who do not think a proposition through and who are blind to the insuperable practical objections.

Government ownership of railroads lost a powerful advocate in the decline and death of William J. Bryan. It was one of his favorite hobbies, but he did not get as far with it by any means as he did with free silver. People in this country have seen too much of the inefficiency, waste and scandal of government, to say nothing of certain experiments in private enterprise, to have confidence in its ability to own and operate railways with anything like the economy, rates and service the public now enjoys. It may be that in time federal operation of all public utilities and even of some of the essential industries may be found advisable, for the theory on which it is based has much to commend it. But before we embark on such policies we must have a radical change in the quality of our public service and in the business and moral competency of government. The senate did Wisconsin a good turn in rejecting this unwise resolution. It is "better advertising."

WHICH WAY IS RIGHT?

Who has the right slant on big business—Henry Ford or the General Motors Corporation?

Ford has followed his own course and has been enormously successful.

General Motors has followed an opposite course and has gained a success nearly as spectacular.

Which one is right? Ford's way is to keep all of the stock in his own hands. His aides are all salaried men; not one (with, of course, the exception of his son Edsel) shares in the business as a stockholder. Let the company grow to be a veritable Colossus, as it has—Ford remains the central figure, one might almost say the only important figure.

General Motors has followed another plan.

It believes that by leading its workers to share in profits it will gain in efficiency and effectiveness. Accordingly, in 1923 it set aside more than half a million shares of stock to be divided among 80 executives.

Those executives are now millionaires. Furthermore, it is announced that this plan will be extended to younger officers. General Motors is proud of this record. It is proud of the wide distribution of its stock, proud of the fact that it is making rich men out of its employees.

Here, then, we have two diametrically opposite systems.

Ford's plan glorifies the central figure and submerges the others. General Motors reverses it.

Which scheme is right? Which one is more likely to become the standard for large American industries?

That, of course, is a hard question to answer. Perhaps one might say that both are right.

For, however you look at it, you must admit that both Ford and General Motors are wondrously successful.

OLD MASTERS

Life! I know not what thou art,
But know that thou and I must part;
And when, or how, or where we meet,
I own to me a secret yet.

But this I know, when thou art fled,
Whether they lay these limbs, this head,
No old to wretchedly shall lie,
As all that then remains of me.

1847. We have been long together,
Through pleasant and through cloudy weather;
Thou hast to part when friends are dear;
But thou wilt cost a such a tear!

Thou hast to go, my little warning,
Once these eyes are dim;
So, good night, but in some brighter clime
I'll be good morning!

STILL NO RESISTANCE

A correspondent for whom I wish to recommend two miles of oxygen on the hoof three times a day sends this comment:

"If I recollect you once said something about the futility of arguing with a socialist, because one can never pin such an opponent down—when one gets him into a corner he suddenly switches to some other point. In following your article on propaganda I have come to the conclusion that no pop-eyed, slippery tongued socialist has anything on Old Doc Brady when it comes to the ability to dodge and duck and slide out of a corner. I suppose you will exercise your great skill in this to escape the fight, for I think I have you in my net."

"Several times recently, and notably in an article on 'The Meaning of Immunity,' you have asserted quite arbitrarily, it seems, that there is no such thing as lowered resistance, that once a person has a given degree of immunity against the germ (as you insist on calling it) nothing will rob him of it, not even exposure to cold or wet or fatigue. You maintain that there is no scientific evidence that any such condition or influence can or does lower a person's resistance or make him more liable to contract a disease of the respiratory organs. Well, sir, here is where you must get ready to do your little dodge, if you can. At the close of this same article, forgetting the very thing you have just been teaching, you say:

"If the (mucous) patient is an old boomer his leukocytes do not mobilize and he passes out without a struggle—no resistance."

"Oh, then the great newspaper savant has himself discovered a factor which lowers resistance?"

Well, brother (I had better not call you doctor, for some one may suspect your identity) it is indeed gratifying to know that colleagues follow my teachings so attentively. If you will keep at it you will eventually have a fairly comprehensive view of the solid essentials of hygiene—and that is something which too many good doctors lack.

Every experienced physician knows that a hard drinker has a poor chance in a battle with pneumonia or with any other infectious (bacterial) disease, for that matter.

But we do not know that respiratory infections prevail more frequently among drinkers than among nondrinkers in the same community or environment. The significance of the term "lowered resistance," as used by the old time physicians and health authorities in relation to the cause and prevention of what they obstinately call "common colds" is clear enough—they mean to say that exposure to cold or wet makes an individual more susceptible to such illness. They do not refer to the capacity of the sick to recover.

Once more I assert we have no empirical evidence (general experience), no scientific evidence (experiments), and no statistical evidence to warrant the notion that there is such a thing as "lowered resistance," if by that you mean the robbing of an individual of the immunity he may have acquired against a given disease. This is not just my peculiar idea, but a sound scientific principle which challenges denial.

Of course, we have good reason to believe that certain factors (amount of sunlight, ultraviolet, vitamin, etc.) determine what degree of immunity to certain individual shall develop, but that is another story. All I contend, and I believe science is on my side of this controversy, is that exposure to cold or wet or chilling does not lower or lessen any degree of immunity against respiratory infections an individual may have acquired.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Is it harmful to use salicylic acid or . . . compound in canning vegetables? Is it true that embalmers use salicylic acid? (Mrs. W. F.)
Answer—If the vegetables or fruit be fresh and clean and the canning process properly carried out there is no need of any chemical preservatives, should say, is it harmful to use such preservatives. I do not know whether embalmers use salicylic acid, but it would be an effective agent for the purpose.

LOOKING BACKWARD

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Thursday, May 8, 1902
The Prohibitionists of Outagamie county were to hold a convention at the city hall in Appleton on May 14 for the purpose of selecting ten delegates and ten alternates to represent Outagamie county at the Prohibition state convention to be held June 18 and 19 at Milwaukee.

A son was born the previous day to Mr. and Mrs. Allen Fraser.

Fire slightly damaged the Theta Phi fraternity house at 275 College-ave. the previous morning. The damage to the house was confined to the small portion of the roof which was burned, the scorched interior of one of the upper rooms and the damage to wall paper caused by water.

The Fox River Valley Knitting Co., whose plant in this city had been destroyed by fire had decided to locate at Menasha, occupying the site of the Tuchscherer Milling Co. About 75 men were to be employed in the new company which was to be started in about a month.

TEN YEARS AGO

Thursday, May 5, 1917
The United States was to send 2,000 ambulances and 2,500 doctors and drivers to France. The council of National Defense announced that day. The first units of 22 ambulances and medical men were to leave within three weeks. This was in addition to the six medical units totaling about 1,000 medical men which were to be sent at once to Great Britain.

President Plautz of Lawrence college left that morning for Washington, D. C., to attend a meeting of college presidents of the United States called to the national capital to confer with the members of the National Council of Defense.

Three new policemen had been added to the Appleton force. William Lockery, who had been serving in the capacity of special police officer for some time had been given a regular position and Herbert Kopp and Edward French had been added to the force.

Of the 235 employees of the Interlake Pulp and Paper Co., who had been reading the adoption of the more daylight plan in Appleton, 231 were in favor of it about 29 were indifferent about it and four were opposed to it.

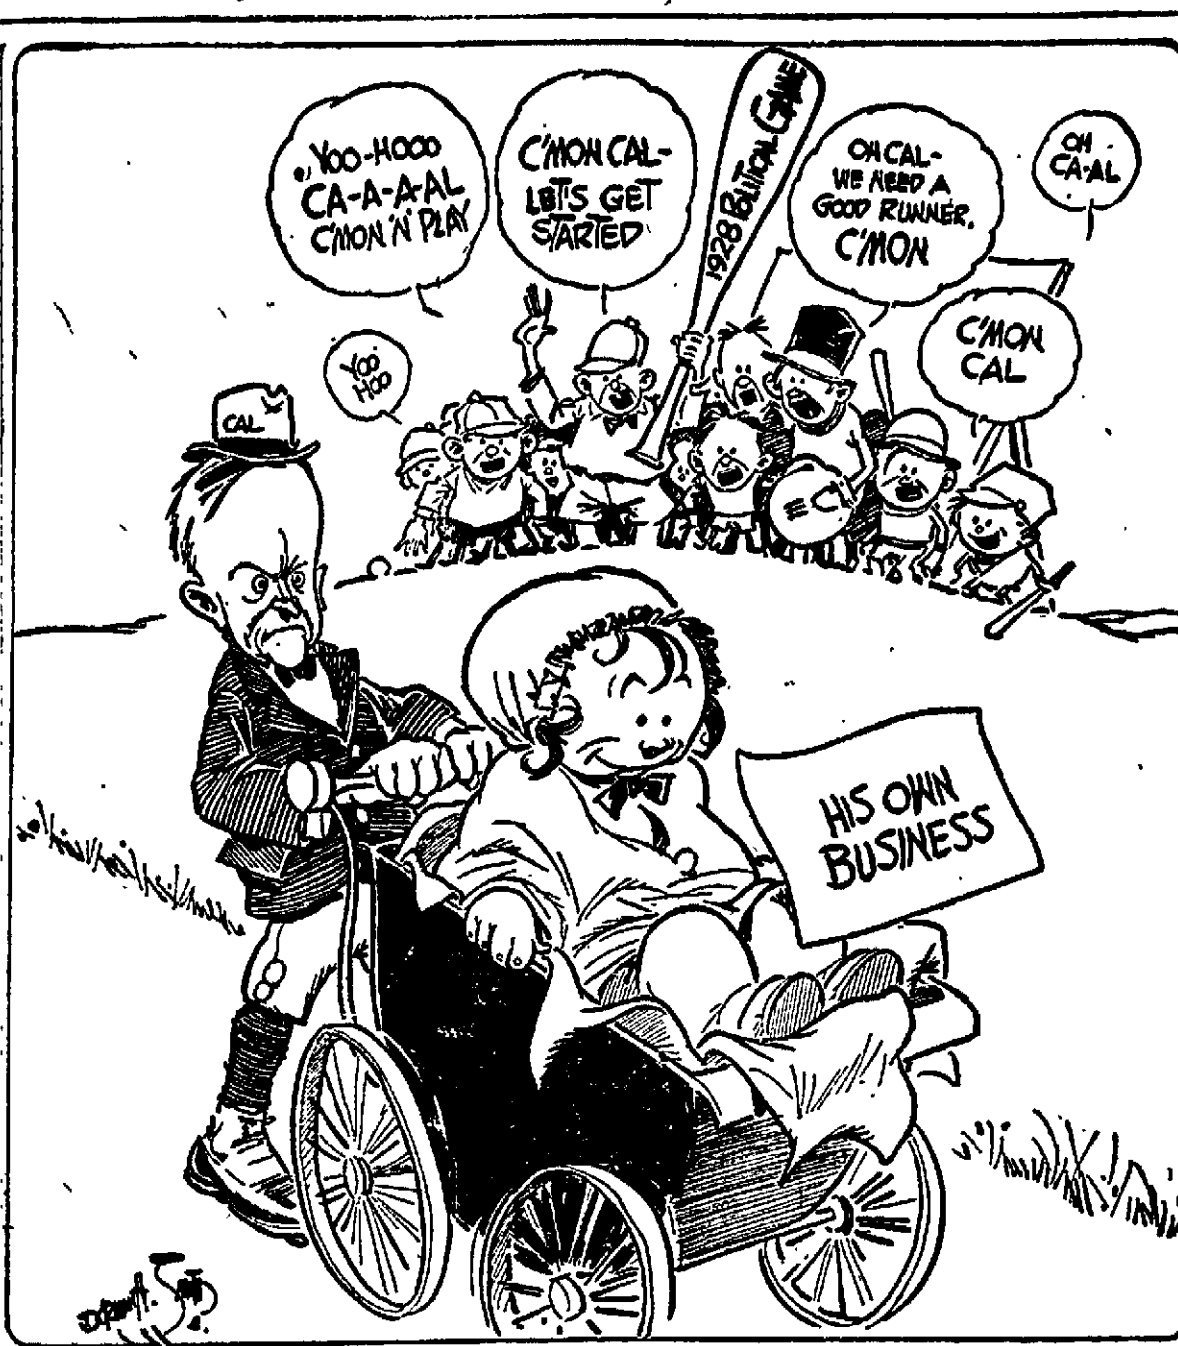

Two Appleton young men, Earl Plautz and Hugo Kellen, students at Marquette University had enlisted for service in the officers' reserve corps and were to go in training at Fort Sheridan.

Announcement had been made by Mr. and Mrs. George Streubler of Menasha of the engagement of their daughter Olga to Ivan F. Ship of Neenah.

Mr. and Mrs. John Mullen returned the previous night from a week's honeymoon trip to Milwaukee and Chicago.

Do you suppose that all the Chinese really want after all, is a little Peking?

WHERE DEMOCRATS WILL NOMINATE

Washington, D. C. —This city may make a bid for the Democratic National Convention next year. Carter Glass, United States Senator from Virginia and former Secretary of the Treasury, has made such a suggestion and his proposal has been received with widespread approval. The worst that Washington gets from any of the nation's leading Democrats is second place.

Many of the men and women who are members of the Democratic National Committee have first choices that do not include the Capital City. Philadelphia, Cleveland, Louisville, Chicago, Minneapolis, St. Louis, Kansas City, Denver, and San Francisco are among the cities that the party leaders must consider most seriously, and at this stage of the contest it can be said that any one of them may prove to be the winner.

About the only thing certain in connection with the convention city chosen is that New York will not be chosen. There will be no repetition of the sanguinary Madison Square Garden affair, if the leaders can avoid it, and they may be so concerned about that that they will insist upon taking the convention as far as possible from New York.

There are three essentials that a city must possess in order to qualify as host to one of the big party gatherings—ample transportation and hotel facilities and an adequate auditorium. Upon that basis Washington is almost an ideal convention city, and moreover, the city is used to entertaining and handling large crowds.

The Washington auditorium is not so large as those in other cities where national conventions have been held, but with the radio working constantly it is not as important as it once was that the auditorium seat from 12,000 to 15,000 people. Everybody will be able to follow the proceedings without taking the trouble to crowd into the hall.

URGED AS NATURAL TERRITORY

One of the strongest arguments in favor of the selection of Washington as the Capital is neutral territory so far as candidates are concerned. The District of Columbia will present no candidate for the presidential nomination nor is there any predominant sentiment here favoring any of the known candidates. Thus all the aspirants would get a square deal.

There would be no packing of the hall with the supporters of any one candidate, as was done in New York three years ago.

After that experience some of the party chiefs declared they would never agree to let the convention be held again in the home city of States of an active candidate. Should that rule be adhered to, the 1928 gathering will not be held anywhere in St. Louis, Louisville, and Cleveland, St. Louis, and Kansas City may also be eliminated from the contest. Governor Donahoe, of Ohio, as a prospective candidate, would put Cleveland out of the running, while either or both of the Missouri cities would be handicapped by the candidacy of Senator "Jim" Reed.

Similarly there may be opposition to taking the convention to the Pacific Coast on the theory that the atmosphere out there is too friendly to W. G. McAdoo. However, the convention was held in San Francisco in 1920 and some of the delegates are said to have found it a long walk home, so there will be opposition to San Francisco on grounds other than because the city is in McAdoo's State.

"I heartily approve of Senator Glass' suggestion that the next Democratic National Convention be held in Washington," says John F. Costello, Democratic national committeeman for the District of Columbia. "Washington is a neutral zone, as Senator Glass has said. It is the seat of the National Government. It has never had a Democratic National Convention. The nearest to it was the convention in Baltimore in 1912."

FOUR GROUPS WORK UNDER DIRECTION OF U. W. INSTRUCTOR

Members Then Benefit of Classes to Women Unable to Attend Meeting

BY W. F. WINSEY
Special Farm Writer
Greenville—One of the most important clubs ever started in Outagamie county, judged from its purposes and the character of the work it is doing, is the Cooperative Home Economics club. This club is a county-wide institution with locals in the several villages and a membership that eventually may include the women of most farms. The purpose of the club is the training of women in the latest and best methods of sewing, cooking, canning and other household activities. The work of the club is directed and supervised by the Extension Division of the University of Wisconsin. The club is now in its second year. The first year sewing was taught, and this year cooking is the subject of study.

HAS FOUR GROUPS
The locals are called groups and they are known as the Horticulture group, of which Miss Alice Jamison is the chairman; the Shoocton group, of which Mrs. F. O. Town is chairman; the Mackville group, with Mrs. Edward Miller as chairman; and the Seymour group, of which Mrs. Ralph Daniels is chairman. Mrs. John Schottler, chairman of the rural committee of the Appleton Woman's club, is the county chairman.

At regular intervals, the local groups are instructed in a special subject and given demonstrations, one after the other, by an extension teacher from the university. The members of these groups then in turn become instructors and after they return to their homes, they call meetings of the women of their neighborhood who were not present at the group meetings and pass the lessons and demonstrations on to them. In this way, every home maker in the county outside of the cities may be reached and in but a brief time receive instruction. At the close of the year, a county meeting is held. The last county meeting was held last winter in Appleton.

WOMAN'S CLUB HELPS
In the organization of the county Cooperative Home Economics club, the Appleton Woman's club, through its county department of which Mrs. John Schottler, the organizer of the first club in Outagamie-co, is the chairman, took the initiative.

Before either of these clubs were started, Mrs. Schottler had been attending home economics clubs in Winnebago-co and later the Appleton Woman's club had sent her as a delegate to farmers' week at Madison. In Winnebago-co, Mrs. Schottler became very much interested in the work done in home economics and in Madison more so in the reports of boys' and girls' club leaders from the various counties of the state. The chairman of the club work, with the result that she resolved to start a county women's club first and a boys' and girls' club afterward.

HOLD SWISS CHEESE LAW IS UNCONSTITUTIONAL

Madison — (AP)—The law regarding the removal of butterfat from milk used in making cheese and limiting the size of cheese was held unconstitutional insofar as it applied to the manufacture of Swiss cheese, in a decision of the state supreme court Tuesday.

The court upheld the decision of Judge A. M. Whiting of Antigo, in the case brought against the state by the Langlade Creamery company, subsidiary of the Kraft Cheese company. Witnesses for the concern argued that Swiss cheese could not be properly cured in cakes small enough to comply with the state law. Cheese manufacturers held that the Swiss cheese industry of Wisconsin, producing 80 per cent of the nation's output, would be threatened if the court upheld the law.

Woman Loves Housework, Has Good Time

"I had stomach gas so bad that work was a burden and I was always drowsy. Adlerika is the best medicine I ever took. Since taking it, I feel like doing my work and enjoy life again."—Mrs. W. H. Clintman. Adlerika gives the system a REAL cleansing and brings out old poisons which may have caused trouble for a long time. Unlike most medicines, it acts upon BOTH upper and lower bowels. Just one spoonful relieves GAS and takes away that full, bloated feeling so that you can eat better and sleep better. Even if bowels move daily, Adlerika brings out much additional poison which you never thought was in your system and which caused your gas, stomach, nervousness, sleeplessness, headache. No matter what you have tried for your stomach and bowels, Adlerika will purify you. Violet's Drug Store.

NEED BUYERS' GUIDE FOR APPLETON AREA

Dr. William Madison, Appleton veterinarian, says that because there are no buyers of springers, and no calves for club work and other dairy cattle in Appleton, and no cattle organization with officers to act as guides to out-of-state buyers functioning in the Appleton territory, buyers very frequently register at a hotel and very soon pull out to other dairy centers, as they find no guides and do not know how to find the ropes. This condition, according to Dr. Madison, causes a great loss to local dairy men and does not give them an equal chance with Waupaca, Seymour, Hilbert and other villages and cities about Appleton. Buyers and cattle guides from these other places often come to the limit of Appleton.

2ND COUNTY CALF CLUB ORGANIZED

WAUPACA FARMERS APPLY COMMERCIAL FERTILIZER

Waupaca — "It has been reported that the farmers of Waupaca-co have applied more lime and phosphate fertilizer this year than ever before, so there is a very good prospect of having some excellent fields of alfalfa. It is very essential that every dairy farmer should raise this exceptional roughage," declared A. N. Howatt, agricultural instructor at Waupaca high school.

"Great quantities of manure and several carloads of lime have been applied to fields around Waupaca, besides a good amount of phosphate fertilizer. A few carloads of lime and a carload of phosphate were distributed at Ogdensburg this spring.

"More farmers should join this campaign of soil improvement and raise larger and better crops on fewer acres. Intensive cultivation gives the greatest returns."

AMUNDSON ADDRESSES PARENT-TEACHER CLUB

JENSEN BROTHERS' HERD AT ITS BEST DURING PAST YEAR

Fifteen Animals Headed Denmark Testing Association 2 Successive Months

BY W. F. WINSEY
Special Farm Writer
Denmark—Of the eight years that Jensen brothers, route 2, have been in the dairy business, 1926 was the most productive. In two successive months of that year, their herd of 15 cows was highest in the Denmark Cow Testing association, and during the year produced 127,247 pounds of milk making an average of 9,726 pounds of milk, 5,106.2 pounds of butterfat. The average number of pounds of butterfat per animal was 330.3. The profits of the cows above the cost of feed was $1,783.81. Fiedra, a grade Holstein helped the herd make the above record for the year with 12,202 pounds of milk, 469 pounds of butterfat and a profit above the cost of feed of $176.34.

In March, 1926, Jensen brothers' herd averaged 40.4 pounds of butterfat, in April, 38.3 pounds of butterfat, in May, 42.5 pounds, in June, 42.2 pounds of milk and 49.5 pounds of butterfat. The total production of the Jensen brothers' herd of 16 cows for April was 16,221 pounds of milk and 615.9 pounds of butterfat. Topsy, an 8-year-old grade Holstein cow produced 1,445 pounds of milk and 53.5 pounds of butterfat. The profit of this cow, above the cost of feed for the month, was $22.50. Fanny, a grade Holstein, 13 years old, produced 1,236 pounds of milk and 56.3 pounds of butterfat. Her profits above the cost of feed for the month was $24.33. Fiedra, a 7-year-old, grade Holstein, produced 1,449 pounds of milk and 49.5 pounds of butterfat. Her profits above the cost of feed was $18.91.

The Jensen brothers' herd is fed alfalfa and red clover hay and sweet clover pasture in season, silage and a special ration consisting of 300 pounds of ground barley, 300 pounds of oats, 100 pounds of cotton seed meal, 50 pounds of oil meal and 100 pounds of bran.

Jensen brothers purchased their first purebred sire when they started in the dairy business eight years ago. They purchased their present herd sire, Segis Ormsby Kornlyke, Lad 18th, 2-year-old, from James McKone, Green Bay. This bull's sire, Ormsby Kornlyke Lad, has more 1,000 pound daughters than any other sire. The dam of the Jensen brothers' herd sire, Pierterje Ormsby Voldes Lad, is a show animal and a daughter of the great 37th. As a junior two year old she made 17,411 pounds of butterfat and 408.60 pounds of milk.

Jensen brothers feed their calves whole milk for the first three months. They gradually get the calves used to alfalfa hay and a grain ration consisting of 100 pounds of corn meal, 100 pounds of oat meal, 50 pounds of oil meal and 100 pounds of bran.

She's Learning To Speak Language Of The 'Turks'

BY W. F. WINSEY
Special Farm Writer
Seymour—Mrs. Fred Brick, route 1, has recently developed into an enthusiastic breeder of turkeys. She started in the new industry a year ago with a tom and two hen turkeys, but before she purchased her breeders, she read considerable on turkey raising in farm journals and agricultural bulletins so that she might be able to use tested methods and avoid the usual turkey diseases and other troubles. By the use of clucks, Mrs. Brick hatched 50 turkeys and raised 58. She kept the young birds in the house for a few days and then let them run about the cluck pen in the orchard. After about five weeks she turned the clucks and the broods loose but they never left the orchard until the young birds were about half grown and began shifting for themselves. The turkeys destroyed no crops, says Mrs. Brick.

At first, Mrs. Brick fed her young turkeys very sparingly on curd, and onion tops cut up. After five weeks, she fed a limited amount of grain. Mrs. Brick says that turkeys resemble wild birds in the kind of feed that agrees with them and in the manner of hunting it. They do best if they are fed very little and are permitted to wander about. When the time for fattening came, Mrs. Brick fed her turkeys corn.

To keep young turkeys healthy and free from disease, Mrs. Brick says, the coop must be scrubbed and disinfected, the floors covered with sand and the birds given a little Epsom salts in their feed, at least once each week.

Although the business presents difficulties, Mrs. Brick says that she would rather raise turkeys than any other kind of poultry. Last fall she sold 33 turkeys at 50 cents a pound that brought her a total $165.

Mrs. Brick has three hen turkeys this spring that already have produced 50 eggs. As a result of her reading on turkey-raising and her year's experience, she expects to do better this season than last season.

WELL-DRESSED MEN WILL WEAR TROUSERS NARROWER;
BEWARE OF RAINBOW COMBINATIONS IS WARNING

BY CURTIS WOOD
NEW YORK—Bold but not loud, fastidious but not foppish! Such is the guiding note in business suits. And those who know what's what in dress never depart from it when selecting office attire.

It goes without saying that a man, be he employer of thousands or an employe among thousands, imparts by means of his clothes a great many impressions of personal importance. So should he be neatly dressed in harmony with good taste, his chances for success, not only in business but socially as well, are bettered.

HARMONY OF HUES
On view in the shops this spring are colorful clothes, and distinctly affecting a harmony of hues. One must be careful in selecting color for business wear because regardless of fabric and fit it can ruin the finest clothes.

And choosing color is a matter with which most men have little experience. Men generally always have been too conservative in the choice of color for business. As a consequence they have bent backwards, have worn subdued, often somber and monotonous grays, dark blues, browns, etc. That there never has been a concerted effort by clothiers to teach men the advantageous use of harmonious colors leaves them somewhat at a loss now to select the really stylish tones.

AVOID THIS!
Colors must be worn discreetly. They must be becoming. Harmony must prevail. One cannot wear a brown suit, blue shirt, gray tie, orange and black socks and a yellow pocketkerchief and then top off this rainbow combination with a purple hat band.

Opposite that extreme would be gray from head to foot—suit, socks, shirt, cravat, pocketkerchief and hat, but all one monotonous monochrome. Between, for instance, stands a suit of one color with matching socks, shirt and tie of a slightly but agreeably contrasting shade. And on the hat, perhaps, a band of still another but harmonizing tone.

For cut, this spring, suits, like hats have turned toward conservatism. No more can the stamp of approval be placed on the "Rah! Rah!" style nor the "cake-eater." What is proving probably the most popular model is the two-button, straight sack back and rather short jacket with wide-notched lapel.

Trousers are developing a tendency toward narrower bottoms—about 18 inches. The "peg-top" inclination is gaining favor. It is not at all unlikely that the fall will see it firmly established in the mode. Vest cut has been displaying less of the tie, and are slightly longer pointed at the bottom.

Nearer to the elderly business man's taste is the three-button model, with the buttons nearer one another than in the two-button. Some relief for this conservatism is provided by peaked lapels, short jackets and wide shoulders.

Plain and fancy flannels, Saxons, worsteds, chevrons and serges are the most popular business materials. Accessories include a light felt or conservative straw hat, soft-colored shirts, bow of four-in-hand tie. Mocha or tan gloves are good.

Black or brown lace shoes with plain toe tips are correct. Spats of white or tan canvas may be worn. Lisle or silk hose to match or harmonize with the suit complete the outfit.

DO YOU RATE A, B, C OR D IN HEALTH?

There are four classes of health. Dr. Meanes explains in this article, of a series of twelve written by four leading women physicians. BY LENA L. MEANES, M. D. Medical Director, Womens Foundation

FOR NEA Service
O H, hello, there, Sue! Glad to see you. How are you?
"Just fine."
"Somebody told me you were sick last week."
"Oh, yes," laughing. "I forgot about that. Had one of my usual headaches. It only knocked me out for a couple of days. That's nothing. I'm healthy as they make 'em. On my way to the club now, doing my marketing on the way. This is Henry's birthday. Fifty today. Five years older than I am. Both of us sound as two silver dollars."

And away she waddled down the street, sinking into her shoes at every step. "Just fine!" How does she know? How could she know? She couldn't and she didn't. She just knew that she had, up to that minute, "got by" that, today, she did not have a headache but she did not know who "she" she could have been rid of those headaches a year ago, or whether she might have failed off with the spring of twenty in her step. She did not know.

There are many Susans and Henrys—millions of them, adults, of all ages. Out of a million men, Uncle Sam found, in the draft examination for the world war, a startling percentage of Henrys. And about the same time, over sixty per cent of Susans were found among four thousand apparently well women. We cannot tell what Susan and Henry rank within that they will have to find that out for themselves. But this much is certain. Every apparently well man or woman, roughly speaking, is one of three health classes, A, B or C. All below C are the Ds, the Sick-A-Beds of the world. The Ds, then, in a hundred, perhaps, can easily find for Class A. It's fortunate that the Cs are also suffering from a number. They are the men and women who go about suffering from the major diseases—heart, lung, kidney and keeping at the "name of being up and around." In

"I got duty at nine and another guy—I mean another man—comes on then and works 'til morning. This other guy—his name is Pop Welch—was late showing up that night, it being Thanksgiving and all, and I'd just begun to worry about a date I had for a quarter past nine, when Chris Wiley—"

"You had looked at your watch?" Banning prompted him impatiently.

"I'd looked at the clock in the garage, and it said two minutes after nine, and Welch still hadn't showed up, though we usually come on about five minutes ahead of time to change into our overalls for work," Rowan explained conscientiously.

"Go on in your own way," Banning directed him with evident satisfaction.

"Well, Chris Wiley, who kept his car at our garage at nights, because he didn't have no garage at his apartment house around the corner, drove up to the gas filling machine—"

"Go ahead, Rowan. Was Wiley alone?"

"No, sir. He had Miss Cherry Lane with him in the car."

"Mr. Wiley wanted to purchase gas and oil?" Banning suggested.

"Yeah. He had me fill 'er up with gas and oil. He had about three gallons of gas in his tank, and I gave him seven more and two quarts of oil."

"Was there any conversation between you and Mr. Wiley other than his request for gas and oil?" Banning helped the witness.

"Well, he said, 'Fill 'er up, Dick. We've got a long trip ahead of us. And make it snappy!' I hustled up with my work and Mr. Wiley drove off—"

"Just a minute Rowan. Did he pay for the gas and oil?"

"No, sir. He had a charge account with us, since he kept his car there all the time."

"How long did the work take you?"

In other words, about how many minutes were Mr. Wiley and Miss Cherry there, before they drove on?"

"About three or four minutes, I guess. I gave the radiator a big drink of water, too," Rowan stated.

"Did you get a good look at Miss Cherry and Mr. Wiley, Rowan?"

"Sure. Wiley talked to me, leaning out of the open window of the coupe and I stood right by the running board, where I could see both of them plain. And when I filled the radiator I looked right through the windshield at Miss Cherry."

"Why did you look at her, Rowan? For any particular reason?" Banning asked.

"Well, the boy flushed, and a little rose in the rear of the courtroom. 'She was—she was crying, or had been crying, for she was dabbing at her eyes with a handkerchief,' Rowan uttered the sensational words apologetically, but not a vestige of their significance was lost upon the heathenly writing reporters or upon Stephen Churchill, who immediately went into conference with his white-faced little client.

"What was the expression on Miss Cherry's face, Rowan?" Banning persisted, with a glance of supreme satisfaction at the suddenly attentive jury.

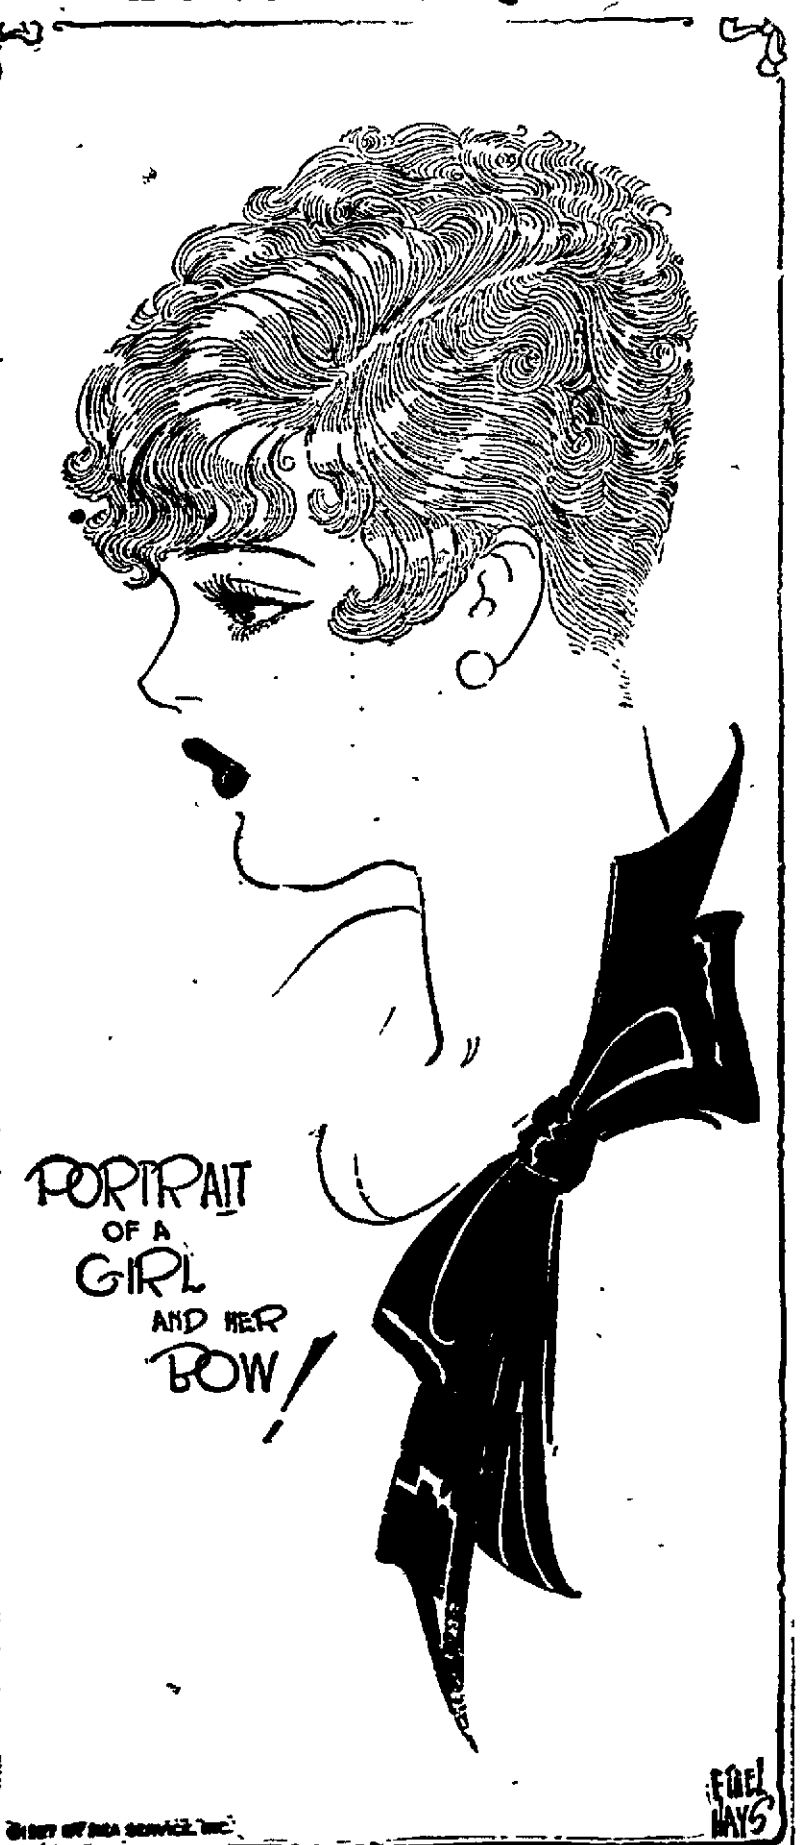

"She—she looked scared, kept glancing back over her shoulder out of the oval window in the back of the coupe," Rowan stated hesitatingly.

"What was Mr. Wiley's manner, Rowan?"

"He was in a big hurry, impatient, spoke sharp to me."

WHAT'S WRONG WITH THE WORLD?

BY OLIVE ROBERTS GAITHER

A DAY or so ago I said to a young man who lives in New York, "Why are rents so high here? Out here in the bush we think rents are high, but in your town they are immoral, that's what."

"Immoral! I'll say they are," said he, "and if you're hoping to know why, I'll tell you. Take Kay and me. We've got one room with two in-door beds (he explained that they were the kind you could fold up into the wall like panels), a small alcove for the bureau, and a kitchenette. We pay a hundred and fifty dollars a month for it. But most of our friends aren't satisfied to live as we do. They want a bedroom and a dining room, too, and of course they can afford to pay more. It's those darn women who keep the rents up! If the women would stop working, rents would go down. I won't let Kay work, so we do with less room."

He actually believed it.

TO MOVE
I know another young couple in New York who, having a little more money than the first pair, paid three hundred dollars a month for three small rooms—not in a fashionable neighborhood either. They are going to have a baby, so they are moving and taking five rooms instead of four. I know that to pay the new rent they are going to do without butter and get their shoes half-soled twice.

APARTMENT ANSWER
It is easy to talk, of course, we who cling to houses with rent to breathe around us. People in urban communities necessarily find the apartment answer to all their problems. And no one realizes better than I the advantage of its convenience. The time likely will come when I shall again be an apartment dweller—as I have been before. But if it does come, I shall close my eyes at night on a mind picture of a horse at the end of a mountain trail and looked over a rolling fertile plain below me, of fifty thousand square miles with scarcely a house. I shall reserve the right to differ with Papa who sang, if you remember, "All's right with the world."

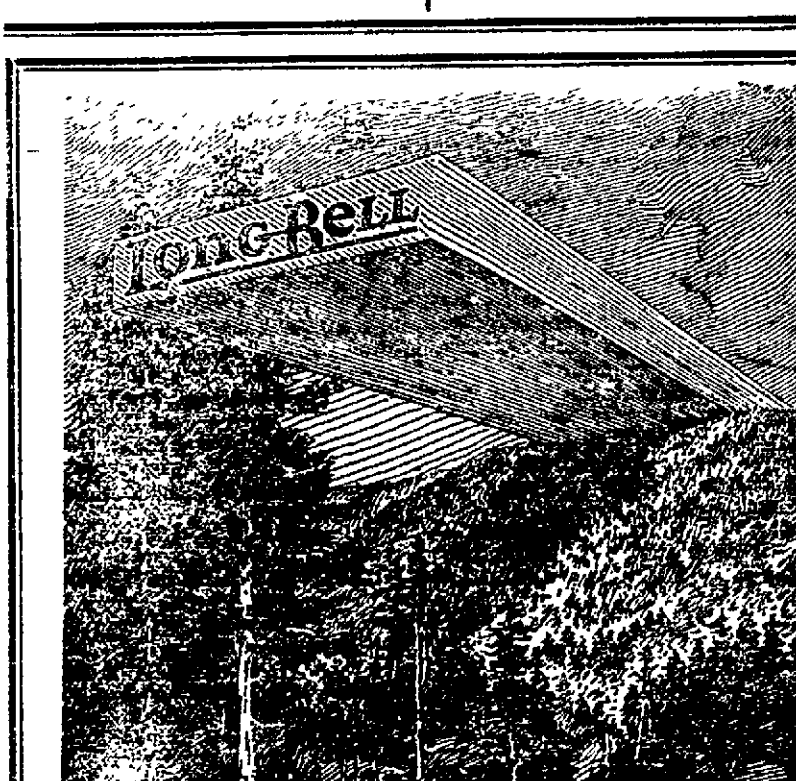

they are newer than single animal types. In one case the two heads cross at the back of the neck with bodies and tails forming a stole effect in front. Fox furs in all the light shades are popular, due to the vogue for tailored suits.

Necklace gowns, like bracelet gowns, are provoking great interest at present. A gown having the necklace idea is made of black chiffon with a yoke of flesh-hued chiffon beaded in a three-strand necklace effect. The necklaces follow the line of the yoke being made of rhinestone or emerald brilliants. Sleeves, on a black chiffon afternoon gown, have bands of rhinestones spaced about an inch apart extending from elbow to wrist.

Monkey skin is a lovely new light pinkish tan tone that is used for many new frocks. Shoes, likewise come in this shade.

Bows are preferable to collars on newer frocks. Collars have temporarily passed into the discard.

The main drawback to the spare stocking, since three single stockings are occasionally being sold in preference to a pair, is that the 'extra' has to be washed whenever the pair is washed to keep the colors alike. Extra work this seems. But cheer up, for if the spare stockings idea becomes a success some manufacturer may see fit to sell a spare carrying along with a pair and thus cut down our expenses.

Piles Disappear

No Cutting or Sclaves Needed External treatments seldom cure Piles.

Nor do surgical operations. The cause is inside—bad circulation. The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method. Ointments and cutting won't do it.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEN-ROID, and tried it in 3000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEN-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at Schmitz Bros. Co., who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer. adv.

First Real Help
in Seven Years

A victim of stomach trouble for seven weary years, Mrs. O'Day had tried almost every known remedy. None helped till she tried Tanlac. Now happy, healthy again, she praises this great natural body builder

A picture of vigorous health and strength is Mrs. Thomas O'Day, who lives at 705 Water St., Ashland, Wis. Speaking of her long illness and rapid recovery, Mrs. O'Day said recently: "Seven years of indigestion and stomach disorders had brought me down to where I was so weak and nervous that my housework was almost beyond me. I lived on a very restricted diet, but even then I would have such bad attacks of stomach pain and nausea that I could keep scarcely anything down. I also had frequent dizzy spells, couldn't sleep and was growing weaker all the time."

"My brother advised me to try Tanlac, and I'm glad I did. From the first I felt its good effects and five bottles in all put me in my present splendid health. Tanlac is great; I praise and recommend it all the time."

Every good druggist sells Tanlac. It is nature's own body builder, made from roots, herbs and barks. Over 52 million bottles sold.

STAGE And SCREEN

Richly ornamented, granting an almost constant flow of tinkling tunes and dispensing comedy that sparkles like real-for-true jewels is the fourth edition of Irving Berlin's "Music Box Revue," coming to Fischers Appleton theatre on Thursday, May 12.

A striking introductory effect in the current edition is that showing Jip Van Winkle being called from the Catskill Mountains to view the present day wonders of New York city.

There is lavish decoration throughout the entire revue, staged by that master craftsman, John Murray Anderson. "Tell Her in the Springtime," rhyming in flowers and pretty girls; "The Weeping Willow Tree"; "Little Old New York"; "Rock-a-Bye-Baby" and the "Bandanna Ball" are other of effective visual and vocal novelties. In the latter number, which depicts a Mississippi levee, all of the participants are changed mysteriously from white to black and black to white. The cast numbers more than a hundred entertainers and includes Nya Brown, Dave Burns, H. "Curley" Monnett, Sonia De Calve, Ames Harper, Jenny Lind, Lyons Sisters, the Six Jolly Jests, and Henry Thompson, L. L. Beeson, Joe Smith, Snyder and Sifrit, Gordon Stanley, Dorothy Lee, Yvonne Chalmers, Jeanette Brown, Eva Hart and many others, together with the Famous Music Box Girls, totaling about 60 in number.

The augmented orchestra will be under the direction of T. L. Corwell.

JETTA GOUDAL SCORES HIT IN "FIGHTING LOVE"

If we were asked to name the most distinctive personality on the screen, we would unhesitatingly name Jetta Goudal. This dark-eyed actress has not only individuality to a marked degree, but a definite esprit that is in perfect accord with her exotic appearance.

We cannot recall any screen actress who has created three more widely different characters as has Mrs. Goudal in "The Road to Yesterday," "Three Faces East" and "Fighting Love," the last named being her latest picture, and undoubtedly one of her best.

"Fighting Love" was felicitously presented at Fischers Appleton Theatre last night and was enthusiastically received by a large audience. The story is drama—colorful, swift moving and it fairly teems with tense situations. The locale of the picture is Tripoli, a country at strife with itself; a hotbed of internal politics and intrigues. There is a new type of plot motivation in "Fighting Love." It portrays the struggles of two lovers to forget their loves; the marriage of a young and beautiful girl to an aged soldier that she might escape wedding a scheming scion of nobility. And then the discovery, after marriage, that she loves a younger man! The drama moves to a powerful climax in a sequence of situations seldom surpassed in tension on the screen.

Mrs. Goudal is splendid as Vittoria, the heroine. And Victor Varconi, a handsome and dashing actor presents a convincing portrayal of a young Italian officer in love with her. That sterling actor, Henry B. Walthall, contributes one of his finest characterizations in the role of Colonel Navarro. Louis Natheaux, as Niccolini, the royal rake, is entirely satisfactory.

A SPECTACULAR WESTERN PULSING WITH DRAMA, ACTION AND ROARING COMEDY

Amid scenes of rare beauty among the fantastic formations of the canyons of the Mojave, Fox Films feature "Desert Valley," starring Buck Jones and his 3000 men. The picture will be shown at the New Bijou Friday and Saturday.

Comedy, thrills and suspense abound in this fine picture whose story deals with the feud of cattlemen over water rights.

Buck plays the part of an irresponsible cowboy, who has a knack for getting into trouble over other people's troubles. Virginia Brown Faire is the girl in the case and Malcolm Waite the ruthless owner of the water rights.

Hard riding, spectacular fighting and comedy of a rare order make this one of the best westerns seen today in some time. This is a clean wholesome picture which the entire family will enjoy.

Scott R. Dunlap directed the production which is based on the widely read novel by Jackson Gregory.

COUNCIL CONSIDERS
NEW 10 YEAR STREET
LIGHTING CONTRACT

Three Aldermen Instructed to Draft Recommendations for Car Parking

Neenah—A 10 year contract for lighting the city was presented Wednesday evening at the monthly meeting of the city council, by the Wisconsin Traction, Light, Heat and Power company and was referred to the mayor and city clerk.

The contract specified 60 or the minimum number of lights in the city, and it is to designate the candle power and the rate is based on the candle power. The new contract will take the place of the present one.

An allowance was passed allowing the Wisconsin Traction, Light, Heat and Power company to place a curve in the line at the Wisconsin-ave corner to connect with the tracks of the Wisconsin Light and Power company and to operate its cars from that corner east to the end of the line upon the Wisconsin Light and Power company's tracks. The ordinance also relieved the Wisconsin Traction, Light and Heat and Power company from the necessity of erecting a freight and passenger terminal.

The Lincoln sewer outlet has become a nuisance, especially during the summer months when the water in the river below Theda Clark hospital is low, Alderman Farnsworth of the Third ward declared. Alderman Schmidt said it is planned to extend the outlet to deeper water in the river. A committee will be appointed by the mayor to dispose of the project and relieve the residents of that vicinity of the nuisance.

Aldermen Herziger, Arnschann and Stimp were appointed as a committee to inspect parking places about the city and to present a recommendation designating places where parking will be prohibited. An ordinance prohibiting tractors from traveling upon oiled streets will be drawn.

The council accepted an invitation from the Legion Auxiliary to attend the fifth annual Memorial Sunday services at 9:15 Sunday morning, May 29, at Saxo Neenah Theatre. The council will meet at 9 o'clock at the city hall and attend the services in a body. The annual donation of $100 toward Memorial day expenses was made to the Twin City Memorial Day committee.

The installing of ornamental lights at corner of Wisconsin-ave and Commercial-st will necessitate the changing of the traffic lights to other posts and positions.

The council authorized a letter to the Winnebago co board asking that body to take steps to provide an isolation hospital to be used jointly by all cities and towns of the county. All cities and towns of the county will be asked to cooperate in the hospital movement.

The committee on streets reported that the new 3-ton road roller and scarifier had arrived and asked that a new order be purchased at once. The request was granted. The sanding of the exterior of the city hall building was deferred until later as the expense was too great at this time. The election of school commissioners to take the places of Mrs. J. F. Gillingham and Louis Sorenson was deferred until the next meeting of the council. A petition to pave Lincoln-st. between Second and Third-sts, was referred to the board of public works. The finance committee was authorized to pay bills amounting to $21,320.16. All services required of the city engineer must hereafter be requested through the city clerk to guard against possible mixups in appointments. Monthly reports of the police department, justices and poor commissioner were presented and filed.

Permission was granted three property owners at the west end of Sherwood to build their own curbs and gutters in accordance with grades supplied by the city engineer.

$10,000 VERDICT

Defendant in Automobile
Damage Suit Fails to Appear in Court

The accident occurred April 10, 1926 on highway 114, near the Calumet-co line. According to the testimony Bednarowski had stopped to get out to look at his leg. The Burrows machine crashed into him as he had one leg out of the car and the door crushed the limb, it was stated.

Little Chute
Lady Now Well

Tells remarkable story of relief brought by new remedy Drecto.
Says she's like another woman.

"For the first time in eight years I am enjoying good health and I give all the credit to this Drecto that is being introduced by the Drecto man at Schilnitz Bros. Drug Store," says Mrs. Nick Helf of Little Chute, a suburb of Appleton, wife of the well-known water tender at the Little Chute Paper Mills.

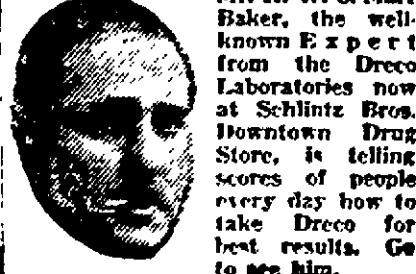

"My whole system was completely run down when I started on Drecto. My stomach filled with gas and acids almost as soon as I started to eat and I was bloated up and belching all the time. I had gnawing pains in my abdomen, was subject to cramps and shooting pains around my heart and could hardly breathe at times. I was in such pain I hated to eat because of the suffering I knew I would go thru afterward. I slept poorly, always felt tired and weak and at times couldn't do even the lightest work around the house.

"Besides suffering with my stomach I was also troubled with dizzy spells, weak kidneys, rheumatism and headaches and was so nervous I couldn't bear having my grandchildren play around the house.

"But since taking Drecto I am a new woman. I feel ten years younger and all my suffering has ended. My stomach is now in excellent condition, my bowels are regular, the headaches, dizzy spells, rheumatism and nervousness have all been relieved and I eat, sleep and feel like a young girl again."

"In good old fashioned roots, herbs, barks and leaves like our forefathers brewed their teas from and raised a hardy race of people are still recognized as the best remedies for the stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels and blood. Drecto is made from twelve herbal plants and its action is prompt and pleasant for man, woman or child."

Mr. H. W. C. Marx Baker, the well-known expert from the Drecto Laboratories now at Schilnitz Bros. Downtown Drug Store, is telling scores of people every day how to take Drecto for best results. Go to see him.

CATLIN TO BE FINISH JUDGE AT BIG TEN MEET

Mark Catlin, Lawrence college football coach, has been invited to act as a finish judge at the annual Big Ten Conference track and field meet which will be held at Madison this year, on May 27 and 28. The invitation was extended by George Little, director of athletics at the state university, and Mr. Catlin accepted. The Lawrence coach was a record-breaking hurdler at Chicago university about 20 years ago.

APPLETON AT OSHKOSH. Green Bay at Neenah. Menasha at Kimberly.

An organization of veterans of the diamond, many of whom have been service with minor and major league nines, will face the Appleton ball club Sunday at Oshkosh when the Stetson men open their second attack on Peninsula. A glimpse at the Oshkosh lineup shows a familiar name at every position and the starting lineup selected by Manager Bruce Noel for his home opening is the very same which started and completed last season to give Oshkosh a Fox River Valley League pennant.

The infield will be Weed at first base, Hackbarth, former Giant, at second, Morels at short and Webb on third. Every one of these men played the entire season last year and Hackbarth led the league in batting. The outfield, also composed of last year's vets will be Novotny, Bixby and Pocholka. The batteries are Gietzen, Noel or Schmitt Schneider's hurlers, backed by Felker or Hank Jensen, old Oshkosh normal football star, who played for Fondy last year. Gietzen, the fast ball artist of the loop last year, and Noel are vets and Schneider, Oshkosh's good coach, has been one of the leading hurlers of the state for several years since leaving Ripon college. Outside of Schneider, whom the local boys have not tried, the mound choice should make little difference to the Batzmans. They like fast balls and when their batting eye is "on," they will spank Gietzen hard, while they can hit Noel if they do not allow his wily mound tricks to bother them.

The local boys clouted hard last Sunday in beating Kaukauna, showing better than all last year. The same batting streak behind good hurling will be the only thing that can whip Oshkosh. Two regulars who were out last week, Hillman and Bendt may be back to strengthen the gardens. The team will not gain its full strength, however, until Ashman is back behind the bat and Shields is added to the infield. Both will add a decided punch to the squad, as they can hit hard, as well as speed on the paths and in the field. While Cooper does a good job behind the pan, his work lacks the finish that comes with league experience, and Ashman has that smoothness of play and ability to pep up the entire team.

The loop will be left with only two leaders Monday as the result of the games. The winner of the Appleton-Oshkosh game and that of the Green Bay-Neenah battle will occupy the peak. Oshkosh has yet to play a loop game but the veteran squad is confident that its first game at home will be a win in spite of Appleton's win Sunday. Green Bay invades Neenah and Nixon is a slight favorite to tame the Baymen after his 22-strikeout win last week. However, Green Bay plays stellar ball in the pinches and is determined to keep its slate clear for another week.

The game between these teams should be the best of the day, a real battle for first. Menasha and Kimberly, two tough-luck outfits of the last Sunday, mingle in the third game, with Kaukauna idle. Both teams lost in the first frame, 4-2, to teams like Neenah (or rather Nixon) and Green Bay. Menasha carried Neenah 14 frames before losing on a forced run with the bases loaded and two down, while Kimberly lost on a bad error in the ninth after a tie score most of the way. Kimberly is a slight favorite at home.

For Appleton City Sternagle a veteran who bothered Oshkosh and Neenah considerably after he joined the club last year, probably will hurl. Reffke who took the mound against Kaukauna will be in reserve, ready to hurl more six-hit ball.

Sternagle, hurling for the first time in several years last season, and coming straight to the league ball from city industrial games, proved to be one of the best hurlers in the loop. Though winning only three of nine games, terrible fielding behind him and extra weak hitting lost practically every other tilt for him and he was a special jinx to Oshkosh after that team had beaten him in the first game of the season. He should give the Neenah men of worry Sunday.

In his first game last year in mid-season he was a little wild, giving five hits in four frames before being yanked. Poor support also helped Oshkosh to pound him hard. In the next game he blanked Neenah, 5-0, allowing two hits, both singles, and out in the first frame. Then he beat Oshkosh, 5-1, giving five hits which were scattered in three innings, not more than two being scored in a frame. Hurling three frames of a game against Kimberly he gave four hits and a run, losing 1-0 in ten innings. It was the same which was called in the seventh by rain and the final two frames were ordered played later.

Against Fondy he allowed six hits, all singles, while Appleton got ten, yet he lost, 5-8. Appleton made four errors in one frame and with two hits it gave Fondy four runs in that frame. He finished a game against Green Bay with two hits and a run in three frames, but the same all-around had been lost. It ended, 6-2. Then came Nixon and Neenah at Neenah, during the time that Neenah turned every team in the loop in succession. Sternagle gave Neenah six hits in ten innings and lost 1-0. Nixon limited Appleton to four sacrifices in the 19 frames, fanning 16. Sternagle only fanned five. Then he beat Neenah, 1-0 on five hits scattered through the second, fourth, sixth, seventh and eighth innings. Nixon was the losing hurler.

STAR QUARTER MILERS AT MADISON

Madison—When the track stars of the Big Ten gather here for their annual outdoor championships this month, but one place-winner of last year will return to compete in the 440 yard run. The quartette of quarter-milers who crossed the line in one two, three, four order at the 1926 title meet have all departed. Sophomore recruits, substitutes and improved varsity performers will scrap it out for honors in the quarter—that grilling race that tests one's speed, courage and endurance to the utmost. Stevenson, Indiana's crack runner, finished fifth in the event last spring, trailing closely the leaders, Kennedy of Wisconsin and Schock of Illinois. The Hoosier is running true to form this season, figuring as anchor man on the crack Indiana mile relay team, winners at the Southern Relays.

The Badger entry in the 440, Dougan, won the event at the indoor conference meet this winter, with the time of 32.2. He will be a hard man to defeat at the outdoor classic. Iowa, with her wonderful mile relay team, will contribute several good men in the event. Baird, a sophomore, is credited with covering the distance in 51.8, while the great Cuhel will feature in the scoring, should he be entered in the quarter mile. Illinois has two good men in Sittig and Fezenden, while Durke, Chicago, leads the Midway entries. Catlin, Gopher runner, took second in the 440 indoors, while Kriss, Ohio State, ran third. Ohlneiser, Michigan, also placed at the Evanston meet, while Bornhagen of Minnesota turned in a 51.8 quarter to qualify. Other good Conference quarter-milers are Capt. Bevan, Ohio; Spencer, Purdue; Phelps, Iowa; Stove, Wisconsin; Mueller and Barton, Michigan; and Binger, Minnesota. Dance Hemples' Cors., Sat.

ALL BIG TEN TEAMS TO PLAY SATURDAY

Badger Cellar Squad Carded to Battle Maroons at Chicago Diamond

Chicago (P)—The midweek series of Big Ten baseball games brought Michigan sweet revenge on Purdue, which had started the Wolverines down the cellar steps in the season's opener. Michigan handed on two Purdue pitchers Tuesday for 14 hits and won, 11 to 4. The two best fingers on the Purdue staff were on the sidelines from injuries.

The conference leader, Illinois, lost its first game of the season but the loss did not affect the conference standing of the Illinois. Notre Dame took Illinois into camp, 4 to 0. Saturday, the Illinois star, was saved for Saturday's game against Michigan.

Northwestern's heavy hitters broke loose against Chicago in the eighth inning and carried off the victory, 10 to 7.

All the teams will go into action Saturday. Wisconsin plays at Chicago; Northwestern at Indiana; Illinois at Michigan; Iowa at Minnesota and Purdue at Ohio State.

The Standings:	W.	L.	Pct.
Illinois	2	0	1.000
Minnesota	2	0	1.000
Iowa	2	1	.667
Ohio State	2	2	.500
Purdue	2	2	.500
Northwestern	2	2	.500
Michigan	1	2	.333
Chicago	1	2	.333
Wisconsin	0	2	.000
Indiana	0	2	.000

nah, 1-0 on five hits scattered through the second, fourth, sixth, seventh and eighth innings. Nixon was the losing hurler. He lost to Kimberly, 5-1 on seven hits, but they included two homers. Meanwhile all Appleton batmen could do was four hits, while the fielders erred the time. He lost to Oshkosh, 5-1, allowing 19 scattered hits in 7 innings, but Appleton got only four and made ten bad errors to back him up.

Combs Of Yankees Best Lead-Off Man In Majors

BY BILLY EVANS
Has the value of a good lead-off man lost much of its kick in these days of slam-bang baseball?

When I broke into the American League 22 years ago a good lead-off man was of prime importance.

In those days, playing for one run was a common practice, since the pitchers held a decided edge, therefore the value of a good lead-off man was far more apparent than at present.

In the old days lead-off men, as a rule, were not hard hitters. Their position of honor came more as the result of being hard to pitch to, fleetness of foot and the ability to lay down bunts and then beat 'em out.

Despite the fact that slam-bang baseball has lessened the worth of the lead-off man, I am still of the opinion that such a player is of vital importance.

To my way of thinking, there is no better lead-off man in the majors than Earl Combs, brilliant center fielder of the New York Yankees.

It is an interesting and peculiar fact that Combs, whom I rate the best lead-off man in the American, is not the majors, is a member of the hardest hitting club in baseball.

In the old days, lead-off men as a rule were short of stature. The dope is that small men are much harder to pitch to, and it is quite correct, therefore a little man, if fast usually got the lead-off spot, regardless of his batting ability.

In this respect, Earl Combs is a radical departure from the thought of the old school managers. Combs is six feet tall. However, he has a peculiar crouch style at the bat that probably lowers his sights about six inches, making him a hard man to pitch to.

Aside from being hard to pitch to, Combs has a keen eye, seldom offers at a bad ball, hence gets many passes to first base. Fleet of foot, the rival infield must hurry every ball to get him at first. He is adept at bunting and skilled in dragging the ball past the pitcher.

In other words, Combs has all the stuff needed for a lead-off man. In addition, he is a .300 hitter, which adds much to the troubles of the opposing pitcher when Earl steps to the plate.

The fact that Combs gets on often is a very important factor in the success of the New York club, since such sluggers as Ruth, Gehrig, Meusel and Lazzeri follow in the lineup. With him on, the Yankees profit well when some slugger comes through with an extra base wallop.

While you don't hear so much about Earl Combs, since he is a member of a colorful club noted for its slugging, which isn't a part of his repertoire, he is one of the Yankees' most valuable assets.

MANITOWOC PREACHER ROLLS PERFECT SCORE

Manitowoc—The combination of left handedness and goodliness proved too much for a set of local ten pins here Monday night when the Rev. Paul Hensel, Lutheran minister and south-paw trundler of the town of Liberty, sent twelve perfect balls down the alley to register a 300 score and take the lead in the single event of the Tri-County Bowling tournament.

As the score was registered according to all rules and regulations, the Rev. Mr. Hensel will be entitled to an American Bowling congress medal. He has already been awarded a new ball by Delmar Seitz, owner of the drives on which the perfect score was rolled.

High School Boys Prep For State Golf Tourney

Madison (P)—Tee and fairway will take precedence over class room routine when high school golfers of Wisconsin chase each other for the winner's laurels at Lake Geneva June 3 and 4.

With the state championship at stake, the youthful "chummy" players will come from all parts of the state for the competition.

Officials in charge predict the largest entry list since the inauguration of the meet five years ago. C. V. Whitcomb, superintendent of schools, will be in charge of the tourney, assisted by W. A. Cox, Racine.

Increased interest among inter-school golfers assured a good representation of youthful followers of the sport and principals are urged to "familiarize themselves with details of the tournament," the first to be held away from Racine and to "cooperate in making it the biggest and best in the history of high school golf."

Hillmore is an 18 hole course, 5445 yards long and any member school of the Wisconsin Inter-school Athletic Association may enter from one to three men in the meet. The Board of Control will rule ineligible any boy over sixteen years of age who carries, or has carried, a club membership in the hands of R. F. Stearns, manager, Marinette, not later than May 25, accompanied by regulation entry blanks.

Rules of the United States Golf Association will be followed except where modified to meet conditions of the course. It is thought that very few changes under the rules will be necessary.

The entire tournament will be model play, preceded by an eighteen hole qualifying round to be played Friday afternoon and Saturday morning, eighteen holes each day.

Results of the qualifying round will not serve to eliminate contestants but is intended to familiarize the youths with the course. A trophy will be given for the lowest score.

Six individual gold medals will be given to the contestants making the lowest scores in the championship rounds.

WEEK'S GAMES
Wednesday-Post-Crescent 5, Legion
Thursday-Bankers vs. Co. B
Friday-Interlakes vs. Brandt Co.

If games in the City Twilight Softball league become more close and exciting as the season goes on, spectators may be expected to be raving mad by fall, for the opening game of the season Tuesday evening at Jones park resulted in a 5-4, last minute triumph for the Post-Crescent team over the American Legion squad, 1926 city and valley champions. Through the usual number of first-base errors crept in and both teams scored about three runs either directly or indirectly from the misdeeds of the teams were exceptionally even. The game was a hard-fought pennant race in years. The two squads are ranked among the strongest of the loop, the Legionaires practically clinching last year's flag by taking two games from the fighting Sternard.

The game developed a hurlers duel between Edgar Graef, the class of the Valley hurlers last year, and Louis Wagner, veteran of the P-C mound staff, with Graef losing on his own misplay in the final frame. With the score tied at four all, two down in the last of the ninth, and two strikes on the batter, Graef bunted the ball over his catcher's head and Sternard scored the winning run from third base.

The Legion opened with three runs in the first while the P-C crew earned one. After that the Soldiers' runs were spied by the twirling of Wagner until the seventh while the winners scored twice in the third to tie the score and one more in the fourth to take a 4-3 lead. The Soldiers tied matters with a tally in the lucky seventh and both teams failed to count in the eighth. After the Legion had been retired in the ninth, Wagner walked and C. Wenzlaff fanned. Sternard singled to left, but Wagner was caught at the plate on a desperate try for home, Sternard taking second in the play. Sternard stole third while Bender was taking two strikes and then came home on Graef's wild peg.

Sternard clouted three safe drives and counted two runs for the winners. With played the best game for the losers. He pulled off what will rank with the best catches of the season on hard hit fly up the left field hill on the north end diamond. The Legion gardener tripped and completed a somersault, but took the drive while lying on his back looking into the clouds.

Cardinals Expected To Show Well In Quadrang

Evanson—Northwestern will dedicate its new quarter mile track in Dyche stadium here Saturday afternoon, May 14 on the occasion of the Fourth Annual Quadrangular track meet between Chicago, Northwestern, Ohio and Wisconsin. The new track which has been under construction throughout the spring will be one of the best in the middle west when completed. It is equipped with a 220 yard straightaway along the west side of the stadium.

Wisconsin, winner of the Indoor conference meet last winter, is expected to give the other entries a hard fight for high honors. Fortified with McGinnis in the high jump, pole vault and sprints together with Dougan and Stowe in the middle distances, the Badgers should prove a decided threat. Ohio, likewise has some capable performers in Kriss and Irwin, sprinters; and Kennedy and Wikoff in the mile and two mile.

Northwestern and Chicago will not be without their stars. The Purple will present such athletes as Lewis, Karstens, Dait and Baggio in the weights; Hermanson in the sprints; Droegemuller, pole vault and Rettig, high jump. The Maroons have such star performers as Burg, high jumper, Williams and Dugan, long distance, and Gist and Burke, middle distance.

McGinnis of Wisconsin and Burg of Chicago will resume their interesting dual of determining who is superior in that event. Both have scored.

HAHN'S RUNNING WAS FEATURE OF SEASON

New York—Lloyd Hahn goes down as the big noise of the indoor track and field season of 1927.

The Cornhusker won every race he participated in—thirteen in all. In many of these new world records were established.

Hahn's greatest victory was gained at the expense of Edwin Wide, sensational Norwegian, in the mile race of the New York K. of C. games.

Hahn's brilliant performances make him stand out as a likely winner of distance events in the 1928 Olympics.

Lansing, Mich.—(AP)—A bill legalizing 15-round boxing contests in the state was passed by the house of representatives Thursday. The measure now goes to the Senate.

HOW TO PICK ENTRIES
All track men who place either first or second in the Pacific Northwest championships at Corvallis, Ore., late in May will be sent to the Pacific intercollegiate at Los Angeles in June. That's how the northern Pacific schools will determine entries to the first big meet of the Pacific conference.

Kansas City, Kas.—Warrnie Smith, Bartlesville, Okla., knocked out Shufie Callahan, Chicago (4).

Montreal, Que.—Rene DeVos, mid-heavyweight champion of Europe, defeated Del Fontaine, Winnipeg (10).

laft, c; Hartzel, 1st; Morrissey, cf; Schroeder, rf; Wagner, P; C. Wenzlaff, rss.

ed victories over each other in meets during the winter and the Quadrangular will be their first meeting outdoors. The two boys are capable of jumping around 6 feet 4 inches and if in good condition will better that mark in the coming contest. Northwestern has an able high jumper in Rettig who should jump around 6 feet three inches.

The half mile run will see a number of the leading middle distance men in the west competing. Williams of Chicago, winner of the 800 in the indoor conference will find plenty of opposition from such performers as Furrey, Gerby and Reynolds, of Northwestern; Erickson and Payne, Wisconsin and Wikoff, Bevan and Loomis, Ohio.

Justin Dait should have little difficulty in winning the hammer event for the Purple. Other men in this event are Klein of Chicago and Ramsus, Tritton and Gabolac of Ohio.

52,520,000 GALLONS WATER PUMPED HERE

A total of 52,520,000 gallons of water were pumped at the water department plant on W. Water-st during March. This is about 6,000,000 gallons more than in the same months in 1926 when 46,680,000 gallons were pumped, according to the monthly report of A. J. Hall, plant superintendent and bacteriologist. The average daily pumping during March was 1,630,000 gallons, or about 200,000 gallons in excess of the daily average for the same month last year. The bacteria removal efficiency of the plant was 98.99 per cent. The settling basins were cleaned.

RETAIL BOARD OF CHAMBER STUDIES YEAR'S PROGRAM

Chairman Is Instructed to Appoint Executive Committee for Detail Work

The year's program for the general retail committee of the chamber of commerce was discussed at a meeting of the committee Wednesday morning at the chamber office. The committee chairman, W. O. Thiede, was instructed to appoint an executive committee this week to care for detail work of the larger body.

A merchants "get-together" meeting at which the many matters of common interest to all retailers could be ironed out was discussed, as was a plan for uniform closing hours for all business places. Most merchants favored a uniform closing hour.

A report of the flags committee showed that a few of the Appleton banners purchased for local merchants had not been called for. Any merchant who desires flags can get them by calling at the chamber office. The banners are of blue and orange, bearing the words "You'll Like Appleton" and "Welcome to Appleton." They were purchased by the merchants at the instigation of the Oney Johnston post of the American Legion to be displayed instead of the American flag in front of stores on important civic days which are not patriotic days.

The complete personnel of the committee is W. O. Thiede, chairman; R. P. Gage, vice chairman; H. L. Post, Chris Mullen, W. W. Frank, J. H. Whitman, A. A. Wettengel, Frances Dertis, M. Freeman, J. B. ## ART COLLECTION WORTH THOUSANDS GIVEN TO COLLEGE

Gift Consists of 1,000 Reproductions in Photograph and Color Facsimiles

The granting of an art collection, valued at several thousand dollars, to the art department of Lawrence college, by the Carnegie corporation of New York was announced this week. Lawrence was one of the first colleges in the country to add a department of art to its curriculum, and is now one of less than 50 colleges of the nation to receive such a gift from the Carnegie organization.

The collection consists of 1,500 reproductions in photograph and color facsimiles of the greatest works in architecture, sculpture and painting; original prints representing different processes and schools from the sixteenth century to the present; a set of textiles in 35 pieces dating from antiquity to the present day and illustrating all kinds of different weaves and two hundred books on the art of every period and people. The books are in French and German as well as in English.

Many of the books are rare and valuable, having reproductions in the great masterpieces of the world have been canvassed to get the sets. A catalogue giving a detailed description of each piece in the collection is provided, as are cabinets to hold the objects.

It is believed that this collection will give the teacher using it all the equipment necessary for the teaching of the history and theory of art. It was announced by the Carnegie corporation, in granting the ward to the local college. "It represents to the teaching of art what the laboratory is to the teaching of chemistry and physics. And the Carnegie corporation is providing the collection on the belief that art cannot be taught satisfactorily without materials just as the sciences cannot."

"While the immediate usefulness of the collections will be to the teachers and the students of the institutions to which they will be sent, it is believed that they will serve a broader purpose in setting a reasonable standard for teaching equipment throughout the country."

Dr. O. P. Tanfield is professor of Art on the Lawrence faculty.

A committee of experts in different fields of art has been working for a year in making the selection for reproduction and choosing of books and textiles. The committee is composed of Miss Edith Abbott, Martin Burnbaum, William Clifford, Miss Alice L. Felton, Frank J. Mather, Jr., Miss Frances Morris, Henry W. Kent, John Shapley, David Keppel and Frank Weltenkamp.

Rudolph Lisch, art dealer, was commissioned to go to Europe and the Near East last summer to get photographic reproductions in every art center from Constantinople to Europe and to have reproductions made where they were lacking.

The committee which has been advising the Carnegie corporation on its art program consists of Richard Ald-

Reader Seeks Information On Nobel Prize Winners

Questions ranging from Nobel prize winners to the number of hours of sleep a lighthouse operator requires have been asked by Appleton Post-Crescent readers of Frederic J. Haskin, director of the Post-Crescent Information bureau at Washington, D. C., recently.

A history student sought information of the Nobel prizes. These are five annual prizes provided for in the will of Alfred A. Nobel, a Swedish inventor and are given for the greatest contributions in physics, chemistry, physiology, and medicine, idealistic literature and promotion of peace. Mr. Haskin stated where the winners names were found and gave other information to the inquirer.

The size of stars varies considerably. Mr. Haskin said. Among the planets are Saturnus, possibly one hundredfold the sun's diameter, and Vega and Capella also much larger than the sun. Alzot, too must have a diameter of more than 1,000,000 miles, he said. Rings or halos around the moon are caused by action of ice particles or of cloud or mist on the Moon's rays.

Normal adults need from eight to nine hours sleep, he responded to the needs of a lighthouse operator question. Red granite is durable and much of it has been used for monumental purposes, an authority on stone reports.

A word often used in the Bible "south" is pronounced "seth". Mr. Haskin said.

The vice-president automatically becomes president at the death of the president but cannot act as president until he takes the oath of office, a constitutional lawyer said.

These and many other questions have been asked Mr. Haskin and he has answered them. When an addressed and stamped envelope is included with the query, a personal answer will be made otherwise the answers will be printed in the "Question Box" printed on the editorial page of the Appleton Post-Crescent.

The director of the bureau has many sources of information available to him in Washington, not open to the average reader. When feasible he refers the questioner to books and pamphlets which will explain more fully.

Sachs, Homer Saint-Gaudens, Walter Sargent, John Shapley, Henry Suzzallo, David Stanley Smith. Arrangements have been made to have an exhibition of the entire collection at the Metropolitan museum soon.

SCHOLA CANTORUM TO BE FEATURE OF MUSIC FESTIVAL

Lawrence College Mixed Chorus of 175 Voices to Sing at Chapel

One of the features of the opening night of the Appleton May Music Festival will be the singing of several of the famous choruses from the opera by the Schola Cantorum, a mixed chorus of one hundred and seventy-five voices under the direction of Carl J. Waterman. The opening number will be the great chorus from the second act of "Tannhauser."

In the opera it is sung by the minstrels and courtiers in the great Hall of Song on the Castle of Wartburg on the day of the contest in song for the hand of the saintly Elizabeth. This Chorus "Hail Bright Abode" is one of the most stirring numbers in choral literature and demands great contrasts in tone quality and volume. The Schola Cantorum will do some of the best chorus singing of the year in this stirring number. Other opera choruses will be "Hail Beloved" from Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor" and the popular and well known "Barcarolle" from the "Tales of Hoffman." A male chorus of sixty voices composed largely of members of the Lawrence Glee Club will sing the "Chorus of Peers" from Sullivan's "Okeana." "Tollant."

The soloists will sing many of the popular arias, duets, and trios from the opera repertoire.

Madame Myrnie Sharlow, soprano of the Chicago Civic Opera Co. and Forest Lamont, tenor of the Chicago company will sing the great duet which closes the first act of Madame Butterfly.

Mr. Lamont and Joseph Royer, leading baritone of the San Carlo Opera Co. will sing the duet from the first act of Faust. The three artists will sing the finale from the last act of Faust and the trio from the Force of Destiny by Verdi. Each art-

HISTORIC BUILDINGS TO BE SAVED BY RUSSIANS

Moscow—(AP)—Churches, mosques, cathedrals and synagogues, of definite historical or architectural interest are to be preserved intact by the Soviet government.

"This was indicated by the committee of education in refusing the petition of a Moscow brought government seeking the demolition of the famous chapel of the Iberian Virgin, which the devout consider the most sacred spot in Russia. The borough claimed it unimpeded traffic."

"This precious sixteenth century structure," said the committee, "has every claim to be preserved with the best of Russia's monuments, because it represents a definite historical and artistic period in the life of the country."

Standing at the entrance to Red Square, the diminutive edifice was made famous by its icon of the Iberian Virgin, reputed to have miraculous powers, and by the fact that all czars during the last 200 years invariably went there for inspiration and blessing before ascending the throne. It exercised such profound effect upon the Russians that communists placed almost over its entrance an atheistic inscription which Lenin borrowed from Karl Marx: "Intelligence is the opium of the people."

One of the unusual and interesting numbers on the program will be the sextette from Lucia sung by Mrs. Sharlow, Mr. Lamont, Mr. Royer, Mr. McKee, Mr. Phillips and Miss Elin, assisted by the Schola Cantorum.

DAUGHTERS OF MIDAS

By Clara Quinn

THIS HAS HAPPENED BILLY WELLS, head of the glove department of the mammoth Curtis Store, NYDA LOMAX, WINNE SHELTON, and seven other girls, almost every one exceptionally pretty, with prize in a second intriguing contest staged by T. Q. CURTIS, the millionaire store owner.

Billy participates in these contests over the protests of CLAY CURTIS, son of the millionaire. Clay suspects his father of a hidden motive and he feels that the contests will result in something unexpected and perhaps unpleasant for the participants. Clay has disinherited himself and is living with the Wells family in the poor section of the city, working in a factory by day and studying music and composing at night. Billy is also suspicious of Old T. Q. Curtis.

Just before Billy gets a note informing her she is one of the prize winners, she has a customer—a man, Oriental looking, impeccably groomed—who entralls her with his intimate smile, his caressing tones. She is still under the spell of his strange presence when she goes to Curtis' office. There she learns that the prizes in this contest consist of an invitation to the Curtis mansion for dinner at a near date, and the gift of an evening dress and slippers for the occasion. When Billy picks out her dress she feels the repetition of a premonition that came to her in the late afternoon—a premonition that all of this is really important to her, that it has a bearing on her future, on Old T. Q.—and on the strange man she has served at the glove counter.

Now go on with the story CHAPTER XV

All during supper on Thursday Billy was in such high spirits that even Clay, who had been moody and silent since she had told him and her mother of the prospective dinner party in T. Q. Curtis' home. Smiled in sympathy. "Had a manicure on my lunch hour today," she announced. "And what do you think? Old T. Q. evidently thought there was something in my suggestion for the improvement of the store, for he has announced that he will have manicures for the girls at the Curtis mansion. Isn't that nice? Think of getting a manicure for twenty-five cents! And the operators are forbidden to take tips from the sales women. T. Q.'s going to make up the difference to the beauty parlor people. So little Billy ain't so dumb!"

"You'll be managing the store yet," Clay prophesied.

"Leave the dishes a while, mother," Billy begged, as she pushed back her chair. "And you two nice things go into the living room and make love to each other while I get a surprise ready for you. And no fair peeping, mother!"

Fifteen minutes later she tiptoed to the door of the living room and looked on for a moment with misty eyes at the sight of her mother and Clay Curtis doing exactly as she had commanded them—making love. The boy's long legs were sprawled on the worn carpet, his tired head rested on her mother's knees, and her mother's gentle, work-worn fingers were stroking his temples.

"Sorry to interrupt," she called softly. "But you've got to tell me if I'll do for the party."

She had brought the dress home that evening, and had smugly let it and her evening pumps and silk stockings into her room.

As Clay sprang to his feet, and Mrs. Wells clasped her plump hands like an excited child, Billy revolved slowly before them.

"Perfect, Billy! I'm going to set you to music in that dress. And I'll call it 'Dance of an Autumn Dryad'."

"That's one of the things I live about you, Clay," Billy twinkled her blue eyes and wrinkled her short nose at him. "You do see and say exactly the right things. It is like dancing; maple leaves in autumn, isn't it, mother?"

But Clay had no more to say in words. He went to the piano and began to compose a lilting, gay little piece that set to music the witchery of the girl and the delicate charm of the dress. Billy listened, her eyes bright with tears of gratitude and love.

A few minutes later Billy left the room to remove the precious dress before even one tiny chiton leaf should be crushed, and when she returned, she was a more ordinary but still charming little figure in a green and white checkedingham house dress.

Without a word to Clay—her mother had retired—she took her violin from its case and began to tune it for their inevitable hour of music.

"Ready?" she spoke at last.

Clay took his place at the piano, still without a word for her.

She cocked a merry, speculative blue eye at him as she began to play, but she could make nothing of the expression of his face. It was neither anger nor weariness nor gloom that she read there; it was nearer to profound thoughtfulness. As they played piece after piece, however, the magic of it won him from his mood, so that when the hour was up she saw that his face was that uplifted, proud look that only music could place there.

When she was putting her violin tenderly and carefully into its case, she was startled to hear Clay say, in a strained, unnatural voice:

"Would you mind letting me see a copy of the essay you won the prize with?"

"Why, no, of course not, Clay. I thought you'd rather not see it. You hated my doing it so. Mother tucked it into the family Bible. I think. Yes, here it is."

He took it and went to the fireplace, to lean against the mantle as he read it. When he had finished and looked down at her as she sat in the big chair before the fire, she was startled and touched to see a mist of tears over his eyes.

"It's a crime for Dad to dangle a fortune before your eyes and then jerk it back, giving you a fifty-dollar dress for your dreams," he told her fiercely.

"But I never had even a fifty-dollar dress before, Clay," she told him softly. "And writing the essay made me realize that I don't want great wealth—I'm grateful to him for that. Just as I said, all I want is money enough for a really nice violin and for the best of instruction. For myself, I mean; of course mother needs comfort, security—"She paused and grim-ned at herself. "Let's not take it so seriously, Clay. It's sweet of you to mind, but I'll win my chance somehow. And if I don't—well, I can always play for myself and for mother."

"Billy," he dropped suddenly to his knees and took her little hands—"you've got to have your chance! You're great—a genius. I couldn't believe it at first. I listened to pick flaws, for fear I was letting my friendship for you run away with my judgment. But, Billy, if I knew music—and God knows I ought to, for I've heard enough of it—if I know a great money learning it—hear one, then you're a genius. You'd do anything to win your chance wouldn't you—anything?"

Billy laughed, a little shakily, for her blood was racing madly in her veins. "You mean something dramatic, like selling my soul to the highest bidder? I'm afraid there aren't any bidders, Clay. If this were a movie now, there'd be a rich villain pursuing me. It's a little difficult to imagine Old T. Q. pursuing seven pretty girls, all at the same time, isn't it?"

"I wasn't thinking of T. Q. that is, directly," he acknowledged. "But this whole business of the foot contests has set me thinking—"

"You've been showing the strain of the unusual exercise," she teased him.

"Listen, Billy," he gripped her hands hard against his breast. "I can do it for you. You know that, don't you? Don't crinkle your funny little nose at me. It was his turn to laugh shakily. "I don't mean on my wages as a factory hand. But you know I can go back to Dad any time I want to. You said yourself Tuesday night that his eyes were haunted with loneliness. And he told me I could come back any time. If I give up this experiment of mine, will you go back—with me? As my wife? Dad would be terribly pleased. He likes you. He'd do anything for you, give you all and more than you've dreamed of in this essay of yours. Billy, will you?"

"You mean—you'd give up your own dream—for me? Because I have genius?" she asked slowly, tugging to release her hands.

"You've got to have your chance, Billy," he reiterated stubbornly. "It's in my power to give it to you. You're more important than I am."

"And you think I'd accept—your sacrifice? Let you acknowledge defeat so that I might be hastened along my own little private path to glory? What a noble cause you must think I am! No, thank you, Clay. I'll earn my own chance—or work in a department store for the rest of my life. I'll not let you give up your fight for my sake. I'd despise you if you did."

"This is really funny," Clay Curtis rose to his feet, then turned sharply to bury his face against an arm outstretched along the mantle. "One girl turned me down because I'm no good without my father's money, and another because I'd be no good with it. And I'm the wise young man that swore he was through with women."

Billy rose, her knees shaking so that she could hardly stand. She took one step toward him, to fling herself into his arms, but something stronger than the love which made her faint with longing for him held her back. With an enormous effort she made her voice sound casual, friendly, cool.

"I'll never forget what you were willing to do for me, Clay. You are the wise young man who was through with women—and you're going to be wise enough to stay true to that vow until you've won the fight you had courage to start. I don't count, Clay. Forget about me. I'll manage. I do keep a good girl down."

She forced her stiff lips to smile in imitation of their old impudence.

"You'd rather take help from my father than from me?" He raised his head to stare at her with hard, angry eyes.

"There's no doubt about it—I'm a wicked woman," she grinned at him, hoping desperately that he could not read her heartbreak in her eyes.

"You know what I mean! You're no fool! You know as well as I do that old T. Q. is giving that dinner party for that purpose. He's planning to play God in your life!"

"How? How?" she demanded angrily, but fear shrilled her voice.

GETTING UP NIGHTS

For Bladder Relief Is Nature's Danger Signal. Columbus Minister's Wife Relates Experience.

Rev. W. H. Mitchell, 224 No. Park St., Columbus, Ohio, says: "My wife was troubled seriously with bladder irritation until we used Lithiated Buchu (Keller Formula). She would have to get up 6 or 8 times each night. Will gladly answer any letter."

"This is really funny," Clay Curtis rose to his feet, then turned sharply to bury his face against an arm outstretched along the mantle. "One girl turned me down because I'm no good without my father's money, and another because I'd be no good with it. And I'm the wise young man that swore he was through with women."

Billy rose, her knees shaking so that she could hardly stand. She took one step toward him, to fling herself into his arms, but something stronger than the love which made her faint with longing for him held her back. With an enormous effort she made her voice sound casual, friendly, cool.

"I'll never forget what you were willing to do for me, Clay. You are the wise young man who was through with women—and you're going to be wise enough to stay true to that vow until you've won the fight you had courage to start. I don't count, Clay. Forget about me. I'll manage. I do keep a good girl down."

She forced her stiff lips to smile in imitation of their old impudence.

"You'd rather take help from my father than from me?" He raised his head to stare at her with hard, angry eyes.

"There's no doubt about it—I'm a wicked woman," she grinned at him, hoping desperately that he could not read her heartbreak in her eyes.

"You know what I mean! You're no fool! You know as well as I do that old T. Q. is giving that dinner party for that purpose. He's planning to play God in your life!"

"How? How?" she demanded angrily, but fear shrilled her voice.
